Edward Nason of No. 15 Davis avenue in Brookline.

Sometime between midnight and 3 a. m. the girl arose, dressed herself and left the house without the fam-

NAVY BALLOON STARTS OVER-SEA FLIGHT

The seaplane NC-4 arrived at Halifax at 2:10 local time (1:10 N. Y. time) this afternoon, having completed a flight from Chatham, Mass., in four hours and five minutes, an average speed of more than 80 miles an hour. The NC-1 and NC-3 averaged only slightly more than 60 nautical miles an hour in their flight from Rockaway Beach to Halifax. The NC-4 planned to resume the flight to Trepassey after a very short stop at Halifax.

Big navy dirigible C-5, nicknamed the "Blimp," started from Montauk, L. I., naval air station at 8 a. m. on a 900-mile non-stop flight to St. John's, N. F., with six officers and crew aboard, in charge of Lieutenant-Commander E. W. Coil, U. S. N. Riding a good south wind, the "Blimp" headed northeast at a rate which, barring accidents, should bring it to St. John's about 9 o'clock tonight. If this flight is successful the C-5 may join the trans-ocean race with the "Nancies."

Seaplanes NC-1 and NC-3 were ready to "hop off" today at Trepassey, N. F., on the third leg of their trans-Atlantic flight, the 1,400-mile jump to the Azores Islands. This is the longest jump of the entire 4,500-mile course mapped out for the U. S. Navy aviators.

Trepassey, N. F., May 14.—Unless all indications fail, the two American seaplanes, NC-1 and NC-3, will take the air late this afternoon in the first attempt to cross the Atlantic by air.

The weather continued favorable this forenoon. It was reported that the start would be made about 4 o'clock (5 p. m. New York time), but Commander Towers would make no announcement.

The two flying boats were tugging impatiently at their moorings in the inner bay at sunrise as gusts of northwesterly winds ruffled the waters. Every man aboard the American warships in the harbor was up before daybreak, and the crews of the two seaplanes were making final inspections shortly after.

This is the last day for which the

GOVERNOR REFUSES AUDIENCE

Want Coolidge to Force Arbitration of the Textile Strike

Governor Coolidge today refused to see a committee of thirty-five women representing the txtile strikers of Lawrence, and Boston police, acting under orders from Sergeant-at-Arms Thomas F. Pedrick, refused them admission to the State House.

A delegation of three of the women was later admitted to the presence of Henry F. Long, the Governor's secretary, but the meeting was fruitless, and they returned to Lawrence protestin against the attitude of the authorities and heir reception here.

The women, most of them mothers of families, said after the conference with Secretary Long that they wanted Governor Coolidge to force arbitration of the strike, which has lasted for more than three months, and caused much suffering in Lawrence.

"If he can't stop the strike we wish he would help us to get passports back to our native land," they added. They were mostly of foreign birth.

Secretary Long's only comment at the end of his talk with the women was: "They had nothing definite, no concrete proposition for the ending of the strike."

"The Governor is a public servant. Why can't we see him," demanded spokeswomen for the delegation. "It is the old story. Governor Coolidge is insensible to the sufferings of women and little children in this State."

The delegation alighted from an auto bus at the Beacon street entrance to the State House and started up the steps, to be stopped at the main door by policemen who said they were acting on orders from Sergeant-at-Arms Pedrick, and the women could not come in. After extended parley they got permission to send in three representatives to talk with Secretary Long.

The three were Mrs. Jennie Bateman, Mrs. George Lazziardullo and Mrs. Antoinette Bolis. They were trailed down the hall and up the stairs by intelligence officers of the adjutant general's department and were under constant surveillance during their stay in the State House. They said that in the party with them were Poles, Lithuanians, Assyriang, Italians, French, Belgians, Jews and Finns.

DEMAND DEBATE ON TREATY

Germans Send Three Notes to Allies; Oral Discussion of Terms Is Sought

Paris, May 14—Three long German notes were handed to the Big Four this morning and they began immediate consideration of them.

The first dealt with the German request for oral discussions of the peace treaty.

The second related to a substitute plan for the disposition of the Saar Valley based upon a division of the coal fields.

The third demanded freedom of intercourse with Austria.

The Germans find the clause of the treaty providing for the surrender of the ex-Kaiser and other German officials for trial unacceptable to them and it is understood that this protest is contained in another note forwarded to the allies.

Advices from Berlin stated that the leaders of the various political parties had protested against this part of the terms, especially the radical conservatives.

Belief is prevalent here that the Germans must abide by the conditions relating to the former Emperor, although formal reply will be made

"I wish the law permitted me to give you a heavier fine," said Judge Hosmer in Chelsea Court today after fining Eugene H. Murdock of No. 55 Queensbury street, Back Bay, $20 for speeding. New York, May 14.—Bringing 1,890 officers and men, the Italian liner Giuseppi Verdi arrived today from Marseilles. She was the first of six ships due before nightfall with 8,459 troops. Roosevelt Talks With NC-4 by Wireless

Washington, May 14—Acting Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt today sent a radio message to Commander Read, aboard the NC-4, and received a reply two minutes later, establishing what is believed to be a record for an exchange of this sort.

"What is your position?" Secretary Roosevelt's message read. "All keenly interested in your progress. Good luck."

The message was dispatched at 11:18. At 11:20 this reply was flashed back by Commander Read:

"Thank you for good wishes. NC-4 is now 20 miles northwest of Sosl Island, and making 85 miles an hour."

The exchange of messages was made by telegraph and wireless telephone through the High-powered radio station at Otter Cliffs, near Bar Harbor, Me.

ITALIAN SHIP FIRED ON BY U.S. CRUISER

Athens, May 14 (Passed by French censors)—A dispatch from Smyrna says that an American cruiser fired two shots at an Italian warship on the morning of May 12 for disobeying allied orders. The shots were fired across the bow and stern of the Italian warcraft, the dispatch said.

Paris, May 14—No official report had been received today at the office of Admiral Benson, U. S. N. regarding the unofficial report from Athens that an American cruiser had fired two warning shots at an Italian warship off Smyrna.

American naval officials refused to discuss the report.

Headquarters of the Italian peace delegation in the Hotel Edward VII also denied all knowledge of the reported clash between American and Italian naval authorities at Smyrna.

"All news from Athens regarding Italy must be subjected to the closest scrutiny," said one official.

ROOSEVELT'S WIDOW RETURNS FROM FRANCE

New York, May 14.—Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, widow of the late ex-President, returned from Europe today on the Italian liner Giuseppi Verdi, after visiting the grave of her son, Lieutenant Quentin Roosevelt, in France. Mrs. Roosevelt made the trip alone. She kept to her stateroom during practically the entire trip from Genoa.

London, May 14—The Italians are sending more reinforcements to Dalmatia and have begun the erection of fortifications, said a news agency dispatch from Belgrade today. The Dalmatian coast lies on the northeastern side of the Adriatic Sea and is being claimed by both Jugo-Slavia (Greater Servia) and Italy.

LANGTRY ACCEPTS DROWN'S RESIGNATION

Frank S. Drown, register of vital statistics under Secretary of State Lantry, who was accused by girl clerks of financial irregularities, offered his resignation to Secretary Langtry today, and it was accepted. In a brief statement Drown denied that he benefited by the money he deducted from the girl's pay checks, but said he used it to pay other employes whom he was not authorized to employ.

REPORT ATROCITIES BY THE JUGO-SLAVS

Milan, May 14—The retreating Jugo-Slav troops that invaded Austria sacked and destroyed the town of Windisch-Graetz, not even sparing persons of their own nationality.

Dorchester Given a Bomb Scare by Can With Fuse

What was at first believed to be a bomb, "planted" on private property in Dorchester, but on investigation appeared to be a "smoke screen" used for defense purposes in the army and navy, was under investigation today by Walter Wedger, State expert on explosives. Before announcing a report on his analysis of the object, Mr. Wedger stated that he should have it inspected by army officials.

District Chief Allan Macdonald of Dorchester with Driver Edward Chamberlain were stopped by excited residents in front of Nos. 512 and 514 Talbot avenue. Between the two houses was an object shaped like a tin can, about six inches high and three and a half inches in diameter. A fuse at one end was lighted and emitting strong ammonia and gas fumes. A thick black smoke filled the space between the houses.

The firemen extinguished the fuse, and turned the can over to State Chemist Wedger today.

ARREST NEAR IN BARRE TRAGEDY.

Barre, Vt., May 14.—As a result of the return here of Attorney-General Archibald, it is believed that a warrant will be seen issued for the arrest of a man charged with the murder of Mrs. Lucina Broadwell, wife of Harry E. Broadwell, and the mother of three children.

Detective "Ross" Wood is confident that an automobile drove into a grass plot on Keith avenue, adjoining the Wheelock garden, where the woman's naked body was found on Saturday night.

GERMANS, IN NOTE TO ALLIES, DEMAND ORAL DISCUSSION OF TERMS

Strenuous Objection Also Made to Surrender of Former Kaiser

to any suggestions that are contained in the German note.

The Austrian peace envoys were expected to arrive today, and it is now likely that the treaty will be handed to them by next Wednesday.

The Austrian credentials will be examined by a commission composed of M. Cambon of France and Henry White of the United States delegation.

The Big Four are understood to have decided upon all territorial questions in the Austrian treaties save the disposition of the Adriatic littoral.

This relieves the American delegation of all responsibility as President Wilson has already made his position clear in this respect and the Americans are resting on that.

Both Premier Orlando of Italy and Baron Sonnino, the Italian foreign minister, have called upon Colonel E. M. House during the past twenty-four hours, but it is understood that no progress has been made toward the settlement of the troublesome Fiume question.

Altogether five notes have been sent to the allied and associated governments by the German delegates. The two first have been answered. Allied experts are still busy with the others.

The German delegation is making strenuous efforts to obtain permission for free deliberations with the Austrian plenipotentiaries.

Count Brockdorff-Rantzau, German foreign minister and head of the German delegation, is understood to be anxious to "get to" the Austrians first with the view to lining them up for a united stand by the two fallen empires against peace terms.

At the same time the Count is believed to foster the hope that Germany and Austria if they act together, may draw considerable advantage out of the Adriatic issue. Through Austria he hopes to launch a reconciliation with Italy, observers believe.

The German delegates are digesting with much glee Italian press comment on the Fiume question. In allied quarters it is emphasized that the Germans are doomed to disappointment if they reckon on a possible definite Italian "bolt" from the conference.

Signatures of Three Chief Allies Make Treaty Valid

Paris, May 14.—An eleventh-hour clause in the treaty of peace with Germany provides that signature by the three chief allied powers will be sufficient to make peace an accomplished fact, it is semi-officially stated.

This action has been taken, it is understood, to make the conclusion of peace possible in the event that Italy refuses to sign the treaty. The clause is said to have been inserted on the eve of the Versailles session when the Italian situation still looked very dark.

If the word "allied" in the above dispatch is meant to include America it would mean the signatures of France and Great Britain along with that of the United States would be sufficient to insure peace. If America's signature is taken as a foregone conclusion and treated separately from the Allies—which is more likely—it would mean that France, Britain and Japan would be the chief powers whose signatures are referred to.

Lodge Refutes Claim Senate Is Powerless to Amend Treaty of Peace

Washington, May 14.—Unqualified refutation of the contention of League of Nations supporters that the peace treaty cannot be amended by the Senate was made by Senator Lodge, the Republican leader, Senator Knox, a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, and a former Secretary of State and Attorney-General supported Senator Lodge in this opinion.

The claim that the treaty is unamendable was made a few days ago by the League to Enforce Peace in a circular distributed from its office. It cited a decision by the Supreme Court which it was asserted held that the Senate has not the power to write new provisions into the treaty.

Senator Lodge disputes this view strongly. He said there could be no question that the Senate has the power to amend a treaty, to strike out portions which may be unacceptable or to write into it provisions which may more clearly define the American position with respect to any of the treaty provisions.

"This has been the practice in the United States Senate ever since the Jay treaty was considered in Washington's time," Senator Lodge said. "No less than sixty-eight treaties have been amended up to 1912. The Constitution having declared that a treaty is the highest law of the land there can be no question that the Congress alone has the right to fix the final terms of a treaty so far as the United States is concerned, for no other body can pass laws except Congress."

Bolshevik Government at Moscow Offers to Supply Food for Wants of Germany

By JOHN T. PARKERSON,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, May 14.—The Bolshevik government at Moscow has sent a wireless dispatch to Berlin stating that the Russians are willing to contribute food to Germany, but will not "be duped," for will they cease hostilities, according to information received here.

It is learned from Vienna that, as a result of a meeting of allied representatives with Minister Renner on Sunday the Austrians will probably accept the entente's viewpoint on Austria's position as an independent state if economic support is given.

The big problem that confronts the allies right now is Fiume. French circles understand that it has been definitely decided that the maximum Italy can hope for is a free port at Fiume similar to the status of Danzig.

SAYS JAPS FEAR BOLSHEVISM IN ASIA

Tokio Government Has Spies Watching Movement in India, Declares Mundy

By PATRICK McEVOY,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

New York, May 14. — Japan is so gravely concerned at the rapid spread of Bolshevism in India that she has an army of spies scattered through the peninsula making notes of the progress of the new political doctrine according to Talbot Mundy, traveler and writer, who for many years has been in close touch with affairs in Great Britain's eastern empire.

Mundy, who formerly was in the government service in India, makes the interesting assertion that the new political doctrine did not originate in Russia, Switzerland or New York, but had its inception in the active brain of a group of Hindu occultists.

Japan, he says, is now alarmed by the possibility of its spread from India, through Burmah, into China.

WILL SPELL JAPAN'S DOOM.

"If it ever does spread into China, the end of Japanese supremacy will be in sight," said Mr. Mundy. "Japan sees the danger and has an army of spies in India taking notes and making detailed reports. At first the British government was alarmed at the presence of these Japanese agents and made its displeasure known to Tokio. Assurance was given, however, just as in the case of the influx of Japanese into California and Mexico, that these men were merely students, cooks, professors, archaeologists, botanists, etc.

JAPS MERELY PUZZLED.

"The British have since learned that there was little to be feared from the Japanese espionage activities. They found that the Japanese were not actuated by any idea of hostility to British ascendancy in India, but were merely puzzled by the manifestations and rapid spread of Bolshevism.

"Japan has the most autocratic government in the world and the people of the empire have no conception whatever of democracy. The Chinese on the other hand are essentially democratic—a nation of pacifist, non-resistant democrats, but pacifism, of course, is merely a form of inertia and Japan in her overweening desire for commercial extension may teach the Chinese how to overcome this inertia and awake the nation. When that day comes—and it is likely to come in the near future—Gee help Japan!"

INTERNATIONAL TO BUY $125,000,000 BRITISH SHIPS

New York, May 14.—The first step toward making the International Mercantile Marine the largest steamship company in the world is expected to be taken this week in the sale to a British syndicate of the 1,000,000 tons of British ships now held by the International.

The price to be paid is said to be more than $125,000,000, which was the offer made when the United States government blocked the sale by its refusal to consent to the transfer.

U. S. IRISH NEVER ASKED TO SEE LLOYD GEORGE

Are Not at All Perturbed Over Premier's Refusal to See Them Now

By ROBERT WELLES RITCHIE,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.
(Special Cable Dispatch.)

London, May 14.—Premier Lloyd George's refusal to see the Irish-American delegates is due to their "Dublin performances," the Daily Express explains.

As already stated on the authority of Frank P. Walsh, the delegates never asked for an interview with the Premier, but the latter sent word to them he would be glad to see them. "Naturally we shall grant that courtesy," Walsh said. There seems, therefore, no harm done by the Premier's withdrawal of his request.

"DYNAMITE IN IRELAND."

"There's dynamite in Ireland and nobody but a hair-brained Irish-hater would be foolish enough to apply the match to it."

These words of an Irish major of the Inniskillen Fusiliers, who is a rebel at heart and who was my companion on the boat coming back from Dublin, sum up the situation better than I could do after several days of observation.

The outstanding fact is the boldness of the American delegates whom the British press accuse of abusing British hospitality. Now it is true that no Irishman could tour Ireland making such bold appeals to cast off the British "yoke" without the penalty of imprisonment or worse.

THREAT OF REVOLT.

During the last few days I have heard Walsh and Ryan make statements which would be accepted as treason in any English court if spoken by a British subject. Moreover, on the occasion of the official welcome at Dublin Saturday, I heard an alderman declare:

"We'll fight them again and fill the streets of Dublin with dead if necessary to show the world the wrongs done to Ireland."

SAY IRISH DELEGATES SOUGHT LLOYD-GEORGE

Paris, May 14.—Americans here familiar with the circumstances leading to the Irish-American delegates' visit to Ireland insist that the story emanating from Dublin that the delegates never asked for an interview with Premier Lloyd George is not founded on fact. They assert Colonel House, at the instance of the delegates, asked the British Prime Minister to see them and that Lloyd George agreed to do so when he had the time.

TO ISSUE PASSPORTS FOR BUSINESS ONLY

Washington, May 14.—As a result of misunderstanding regarding the conditions under which passports may be obtained, the State Department has announced that it has no intention of interfering with persons who have legitimate business in Europe, and that passports will be issued as required.

Attention is called, however, to the fact that the governments of Great Britain, France, Switzerland, Italy and Belgium have asked that travelling be restricted to what is absolutely necessary.

Railroad detectives are now trying to locate the leak, the mystery deepening when it became known there was but one stop in Holliston and that the car was sealed again.

GRASS RUGS

Grass Rugs, as you may know, are growing tremendously in favor for the porch and for the interior in Summer. They seem to carry the freshness and coolness and the "country outdoors" right onto the floor.

You will wish to see and know more about the Deltox Rugs. The first thing that impresses one and explains their popularity is that they are more closely woven than grass rugs generally; obviously this means longer wear.

Another feature is the variety of artistic combinations, making them adaptable to conventional or original decorative schemes.

MANY TENANTS FIGHT RENT BOOST OF LANDLORDS BY MOVING

SAY FLATS ARE UNHEATED AND REPAIRS ARE DENIED

Many persons living in apartments on Commonwealth avenue and adjoining streets are planning on moving as the result of the declarations of landlords that they will increase rents when present leases expire.

A Boston American reporter who dropped into several apartments heard the landlords roundly denounced and learned of many persons who have already given their notices to leave. Others say they are searching for new homes and say they will quit as soon as they can make the necessary arrangements.

Instance after instance was related of failure of landlords to make necessary repairs, furnish heat during the recent cold, rainy spell or endeavor to keep out undesirable tenants.

Mrs. Florence A. Thayer of No. 1710 Commonwealth avenue, who resides in one of the ninety-two apartments owned or controlled by Fred A. Corbett of Sutherland road, said that when her leas runs out in the Fall it will cost her $17.50 or $20 a month more to renew it than when she first went to live there two years ago last October.

UP $20 A MONTH.

Mr. Corbett admitted the truth of this statement and declared that this increase of $20 a month on five-room apartments will barely cover the increased cost of maintenance. He declared that he plans to charge $62.50 for all his apartments similar to that in which Mrs. Thayer lives when leases are renewed and $65 if new tenants occupy them.

"When I first came here," said Mrs. Thayer, a kindly middle aged woman, "my rent was $45 a month. Last year Mr. Corbett raised it to $52.50 and he has informed me that it will be $62.50 when my lease is renewed. I don't know what I'll do. I will not pay it if I can get anything suitable for less. I have been looking around for another apartment, but they are very scarce. Two people who live in this block have already given their notice to leave. One of them has been out June 1, but has not yet secured a place to move into.

"I think the increases are abominable and they all think so and say so. During the recent rainy spell the apartments were very cold and we had to use oil heaters to keep warm.

"Although we are paying high rents conditions here are very unsatisfactory. For a period of two weeks there was no light in the inner hall and there has been no light there since Friday.

"It is practically impossible to get repairs. Nothing has been done for me during the nearly three years I have been here."

Mr. Corbett said: "We plan to take care of all repairs. It is to my interest to do it."

TO KEEP VESTIBULES DARK.

Landlord Corbett admitted that there have been no lights in the outer vestibules since lightless nights went into effect, and he said such lights were unnecessary and that he has no have his vestibules all lighted in the future.

He stated that apartment houses never paid while normal building operations were under way and that apartments were frequently rented at a low price in order to get tenants.

"Why, on my block of ninety-two apartments I lost $10,000 last year on increased cost of coal, janitor service, taxes, interest and electric light for the halls," he said. "That represents an increased cost of $2 for each flat.

"Rents have got to be increased. There will be no building until rents are increased. The increase which will put into effect will barely pay the increased cost of maintenance. If an apartment house were erected today it would be necessary to get $85 for four-room suites that we are now getting $55 for."

Mr. Corbett said he thought he would not make more than 3 per cent on his investment when the new increases go into effect. He said the only hope of lower rentals is a lower price of coal, better grade coal, lower price of labor, etc. He stated that coal cost him as high as $18 a ton last Winter because he was forced to hire an automobile truck at $25 to haul it on account of the rules of the coal administrator.

Regarding his refusal to furnish heat during the recent rainy spell, Mr. Corbett said: "My lease calls for heat during the Winter months. The last few days were not in Winter months. We can't afford to give heat every time a tenant wants it."

THREE REASONS FOR MOVING.

Another tenant on St. Luke's road, off Commonwealth avenue, was in the midst of packing her belongings preparatory to moving. She declared that she is moving from the first floor three-room apartment for three reasons. "I am moving," she said, "because the landlord will make no repairs although they are badly needed and because of the noise and disturbances.

"I was paying $35 a month for this place until May 1 when the price was raised to $37.50," she said. "I am told the price will be $46 in the Fall. Why, another of the tenants was even charged for shellac which was used on a floor. One of my rooms needs whitening on account of a leak from the floor above, but the landlord will not fix it. The front door will not close, but he will not fix it. Anyone can come in this building at any time of night without being stopped.

"Police officers have visited this building and another apartment next door on account of things that have happened. Because of the failure of the janitor to empty garbage cans the Board of Health was notified. These are a few of the things that have occurred."

CLAIMS MONEY LOST.

President Riley G. Crosby of the Builders' and Apartment House Owners' Association owns eight large apartment houses, one occupied by Fred A. Corbett of Sutherland road, one on Warren avenue, between Warren street and Summit avenue. His office is in the Sunnymead, No. 1478 Commonwealth avenue.

"We've simply got to do something, or else go out of business," declared Mr. Crosby, apropos of the proposed meeting to further boost rents. "As it is, I have been furnishing 74 apartments for two years for absolutely nothing. In fact, I lost money on one house during this period."

Continuing, President Crosby said: "The Sunnymead apartments at No. 1,478 Commonwealth avenue, in which I have a third interest of $18,000, cost me $815 out of my own pocket this last year. As the property did not pay it was necessary to make an assessment on the three owners. I had to sell my house in Newton in order to pay the taxes on this property last year. In other words, instead of making a profit I was out $815 by my investment in these apartments, to say nothing of the interest on the $18,000 which I have invested.

"This year I will have to raise the price of every one of my suites from $2 to $7 so the property will net 6 or 7 per cent, the profit over which the mortgagees will have to take it over.

"I am paying $1 ton more for what I was three years ago. Repairs of all sorts cost twice as much. Banks have only been willing to 6 per cent interest on mortgages.

"COAL MEN PROFITEERS"

"If the newspapers want to get after the real profiteers why don't they get after the coal dealers; why don't they see that the United States government does not allow such coal as was sold last Winter to come to New England. We were forced to pay $17 a ton for coal last Winter on account of the large amount of rock and slate it contained.

"Fifty tons were put into the basement of the building and we had to put five barrels of solid rock from five tons at random.

WANTS COAL MEN PROBED.

"The coal which we had last Winter was so bad that the slate fused and blocked up our grates to such an extent that I was compelled to burn soft coal in one block.

"The highest raise of rentals on any of my apartments dufing the past year has been $5. The increase will not average $2.50. On quite a few I didn't raise at all."

O. N. Billings, secretary of the association, said:

"Every owner wants to lower rents let him get after the coal dealers and the tax rate. Cut the price of coal and give us better coal and you can cut the rates of rents.

"Rents have got to increases under present conditions and the more the newspapers talk about it the quicker the increases will be made. I raised my rents $2.50 per suite per month. I should have raised them $10 a month to meet the increased cost of maintenance."

Rents Increased in 150 Beverly Three-Deckers; Many Tenants Leave City

Beverly, May 14—Rents in about 150 of the three-decker apartment houses owned by the Beverly Realty Company in the United Shoe Machinery Company, all three floors, were raised from $3 to $5 a month by Joseph Simon, president of the company.

The increases have called forth many protests from the occupants, many of whom have moved away to other towns, being unable to secure places here. The United Shoe Machinery Company does not like the effect of the increases, as it causes many of the employees to arrive late for work, owing to their inability to make proper connections.

CHARGES PLOT IN 'BABY FARM' DEATH CASE

Edorn Says Baby Given to Another Family by Mrs. Hanglin Is His

Newark, N. J., May 14—Mrs. Conna Hanglin, young "baby farm" proprietor, was held in $2,500 bail after her arraignment on the charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of Earl Eadorn, a three-months-old baby, whose burned body was found in the cellar of her home a few days ago. She is charged with "wilfully causing the death" of the infant.

Mrs. Hanglin says Paul Endorn was in a baby carriage near the open fireplace; that she went out on an errand; that she returned to find the infant burning; that "woman-like" she never her carelessness, she failed to call a physician, but buried the child in the cellar at No. 54 Howard street on December 13, 1918.

Theories bearing on mental derangement and gross carelessness have been investigated under the direction of Prosecutor J. H. Harrison, of Newark. Interviews in the stories related by all parties connected, directly or indirectly, with the finding of the small cadaver in a damp and roomy cellar is that of a father's love. He is Endorn.

His wife died late in November during the epidemic of influenza, leaving the small children on his hands. Four of them he placed in institutions. To fifth was given Mrs. Hanglin when she offered to adopt the infant, says Endorn.

Following several visits to the Hanglin home, Endorn says, he was satisfied that his child had been spirited to death. He was frantic. He asked police investigation. Mrs. Hanglin admitted the death and burial of little Paul and was taken to headquarters, where she was crossexamined by Chief Long and other officials.

LUCKENBACH IN PRETTY WIDOW GIVES DETAILS OF ABDUCTION

Michigan Regiment Saw Service in War; Accident on Ship Injures Many

Mrs. Waterman Tells in Court of Kidnaping From Her Home in Nightgown

With the usual tooting of whistles and cheers of welcome from official committees and civilians, the transport U. S. Luckenbach docked today at Commonwealth Pier with the 126th Infantry, 32d Division, less the 3d Battalion.

Of the more than 2,000 officers and 2,000 men in the regiment, commanded by Colonel Ira C. Mullinan, The 2d Battalion, which is formerly a part of the Michigan National Guard, was 2,000 strong when sailed for France, and it sustained no casualties.

Five men were carried from the ship in a stretcher, victims of an accident which fell iron bunks on the berth deck several days during a terrific gale on the way across.

The Luckenbach left Brest in a storm on April 30 and on the second night out one of the engines broke down. The tramp at once began rolling dangerously, and acted fearfully in the heavy sea. This rolling led to the collapse of 700 of the 2,000 bunks and the injury of 29 men. Fifteen of these were only bruised, but the other five suffered from broken jaws, arms and legs.

RIGGED JURY SAIL.

The crew of the vessel rigged a jury sail from the fore-and-cargo mast, to keep her under control, and after several days' labor the engine was repaired and the voyage resumed.

The 126th Infantry, as a part of the 32d Division, put in twelve weeks in Alsace, going from there to Chateau Thierry. At the second battle of the Marne it was one of the two regiments that captured Fismes. It then became a part of General Mangin's army and went up to the Chemin des Dames, participating in the heavy fighting.

At St. Mihiel the regiment was in reserve for five days, but again went into action and broke through the famous Kremhilde-Stretlung line. For this action it received the insignia of the Arrow. Then the regiment became a part of the Fifth Army Corps, and went up in twenty-one days in the Argonne, winding up at Brehville at the time of the signing of the armistice.

It was at the time that Colonel Joseph E. Westnedge, who took the outgoing men through the war, was exhausted and died of exhaustion.

BOSTON MAN A HERO.

Major W. H. Burke of the 1st Battalion took a prominent part in the fighting, as did the men in the regiment. First Lieutenant Charles Toole, regimental adjutant, was hit after the fifth day on relieved the 37th Lieutenant Toole was ordered home for promotion as a reward for his gallantry in going through one more show with the 126th and did so. With Colonel Westnedge and Major Burke he was taught beyond the lines and the two officers were forced to fight their way back. Westnedge and Burke made it, but Lieutenant Toole was killed. Major Burke expressed the desire to meet some of the lieutenant's friends and left them on the first few months of the young man.

Another Massachusetts man who returned with the regiment was Captain A. W. George of Westwood.

Colonel George E. Waldo and Gen. Frederick W. Harrah were present at Commonwealth Pier as representatives of Detroit to officially welcome the 229 Detroit men in the regiment. Each of these 229 men was presented with a $5 bill.

Immediately upon disembarking the troops were placed aboard trains and sent to Camp Devens. From there they will be sent to the camps nearest their points of enlistment.

Nasmyth, head of the Greater Boston Federation, said Mr. Foley did not because his presence was misunderstood and his connection with the union was through its program. It is not denied that some jealousy exists between leagues of teachers and the differences are not fundamental, according to Dr. Nasmyth, and the work of organization will go on.

700,000 Birds Killed Yearly by Bay State Cats

Seven hundred thousand birds are killed by cats in this State annually, according to an estimate of the Commissioners on Fisheries and Game, and a bill has been introduced with that statement in an appeal to bird lovers to keep cats where during the spring breeding season extends from May 15 to August 15.

The statement reads in part:

"On the activities of the insecteating birds depends, to a large measure, the success of the crops and the preservation of the forests. Cats do not get all birds, but confirmed cats are rascals on the wild bird list. Cats are the most deadly and abandoned hunting beasts certain the owners humanely believe their cats are harmless. The destruction of hiding birds because the work is not done where they can be seen is appalling. Any well-fed cat will kill three birds in a single sea-

'MISSING HERO' IS HONORED AT CAMP DEVENS

Corporal McPherson of Abington Decorated for "Extraordinary Heroism"

Camp Devens, May 14—The Distinguished Service Cross and the citation for extraordinary heroism conferred today upon Corporal Henry H. McPherson of C Company, 104th Infantry of the 26th Division, a resident of Abington.

Corporal McPherson is the soldier whom the Camp Devens authorities were seeking with a search-warrant for several months, but who was finally located in a hospital in France. The citation and cross had been sent here because it was thought that the hero had been ordered to this camp. He was not located here at first because the relation of his rank to that of Private McPherson was not known.

Corporal McPherson was also wounded while he had been promoted.

McPherson was in the base hospital here under treatment for war injuries. The announcement from the adjutant general's office that he was being sought was printed in the Boston American last Saturday and was seen by a former hospital of the base hospital.

Mrs. McPherson was able to identify herself as the "Private McPherson" mentioned in the citation for extraordinary heroism, and left for France. Arrangements were made to confer the decoration upon him today.

The ceremony took place upon the main parade ground at 4 o'clock this afternoon. Infantry formed on the three sides of the square. Major Gen. Clarence R. Edwards, commanding the division, presided. Major P. McCain while the battalion stood at attention and the regimental band played the "Star Spangled Banner." A review of the battalion followed, conducted by several Pershing, on April 16 reads:

For extraordinary heroism in action near Fismes, France, August 28, 1918. He volunteered repeatedly during the attack on his unit, to carry messages through several areas. Throughout the action the soldier displayed great courage, coolness, endurance and a devotion to duty far beyond the scope of his position, personally carrying several important messages to the front lines.

BLOCK ESCAPE OF WITNESS IN BARRE DEATH

Flight of Woman Would Have Been Blow to Case Against Broadwell Slayer

Barre, Vt., May 14—The police are today ready to arrest the man whom they suspect as the murderer of Mrs. Harry E. Broadwell, whose body was found in the centre of the business district of this city on the morning of May 4 last. Believing the arrest is the season of Attorney General Guy W. Graves of Montpelier, who is in charge of the case, from his return the evidence that points to this suspect as the strangler of the young mother will be placed before the state officials and it is expected that the attorney-general will sanction the arrest.

But he let the cat of evidence has been tightened around this principal suspect by the testimony and painstaking work of Deputy Sheriff Harry Chief of Police Mitchell. Detective "Bob" Wood and the others engaged in the solving of the mystery have been at it day and night. Extensive work on the case has been concentrated upon the important part in the solving of the crime, and evidence that implicated him at the time of the murder is now being carefully sifted.

An effort to enlist a valuable witness in the case away from Barre was frustrated today when a woman who was known to be about to board a train from this vicinity for Montreal was detained by officers and taken to the police station. She was in this city and its position is make still more difficult.

This woman has already revealed information which is considered to be of importance in the case and for this reason it may be necessary to have her detained in this city for the present. Her original story of what she had told a party would directly implicate the man who is now under police surveillance. Her original story was given to the police by the woman herself, but subsequent questioning during the past few days by officers in the case has continued to was alleged that she acted without authority and with every intention of leaving the state permanently.

That the witness was enticed to act as she attempted today is the opinion of the investigators. They believe that the party who originally gave the information carry cold her story. They know that the story they have told is false and that they have done so to have the woman leave the state. It is known that she met a man in Washington, D. C., who is believed to be implicated in the crime. On the departure of the train she would have met this man and gone with him to one of the larger cities in search of the fact that this man whom they thought was implicated in the case and bring before the court the man whom they thought as being guilty of the crime.

BUILD NOW AND SAVE MONEY, IS ADVICE OF DEALER IN SUPPLIES

"If you have a lot, build on it. Get your lot built on before somebody else wants to do the same thing elsewhere. The person who gets his contract let now is going to get his house cheaper.

"Prices of houses or the material to build them, or remodel them, will not go down to the pre-war levels, or to even a point within ten per cent of what they were. I would advise the public emphatically to build now, because the time is right at hand when it will be difficult to obtain contracts and labor."

This was the advice and warning given by C. Sidney Waldo, President of Waldo Brothers, Incorporated, with offices at No. 45 Batterymarch street, when asked to give an opinion on the American's "Build Now" campaign. Mr. Waldo is head of the biggest concern in New England dealing in all kinds of building supplies. The orders and inquiries which reach him give him a good idea of the pulse of the building world.

NO HOPE FOR DROP IN PRICES.

"It is a fallacy to think that prices of building materials will drop," Mr. Waldo said. "The building market will be about the same as it was here after the Civil War, and as building conditions go after every war anywhere. Resorting to earlier history between January 1 and July 1 of 1865, there had been a drop in the prices of 27 per cent. in general materials and 14½ per cent. in building materials. But the prices all went up to their high figure again in 1866.

"It looks to me as if the same thing is happening today, because from November 30, 1918, to March 22, 1919, the average of decline was greater than the advance. Since then there has not been more of an advance than a decline.

"The present situation in the building supplies business shows there are lots of prospects, for in the last three weeks we have had more orders than we have had in years. But in January, February and March our business was much less than it had been in several years—say four or five years. In April the conditions began improving and now they are just a little below normal for this time of year.

"An important fact the people should realize is that even though prices are higher than before the war, contractors are very anxious for work. The people should realize also that the fellow who gets his contract let now is going to have his work done cheaper than if he waits. The truth of this will be borne out very shortly."

LABOR'S DEMANDS HEAVY.

"Prices will not go down to pre-war prices, and the public should keep this in mind. It stands to reason that prices cannot go down. Do not call me a pessimist or extravagant in terms when I say that I believe prices in general will never in the history of the world go down to what they were a few years before the war. Labor's demands and the high cost of living will keep up the prices of building materials. You are not going to get labor to go back to the old basis and lower wage scales. And that is what I say to my friends: 'Build now.'

"It required thirteen years after the Civil War for prices to go back to normal and that was due entirely to new machinery and the improved methods of manufacturing."

"Do you think there will be a big boom in machinery?" Mr. Waldo was asked.

"I do. I think there will be a big boom in everything," he said. "And I am sure there will be a big foreign demand for American building as well as everything else. We can secure foreign business in the building lines as soon as we are equipped to go after it.

"But when all is said and done I would advise that public to build now and strike the iron while it is hot. The man who builds now will surely get what he is after much cheaper than when the big building boom gets in full swing. There is going to be great difficulty in getting contractors and labor when the boom gets well under way. There is keen competition in contract work today, and when the boom starts everyone will be trying to get contractors.

EMERGENCY IS OVER.

"During the war you could not get building materials—the government would not allow it. The construction of buildings for dwelling purposes was at a standstill. Construction was going on at a tremendous pace, but only that kind of construction that would lead directly or indirectly to the winning of the war. Around the various plants temporary houses or barracks were erected for the workers. This necessary form of construction brought all other kinds of construction to a stop.

"The present day we find the country, and particularly New England, splendidly equipped to carry on a war which no longer exists. The emergency is over and our tendency is to sit back and wait for pre-war conditions to return. Pre-war conditions won't just happen—won't arrive. Conditions of good, stable, flourishing business won't come unless each citizen is willing to assume his share of the responsibility."

Mr. Waldo pointed out that the war housing program has concentrated living quarters in useless areas. He added that those who have houses to rent or sell realize this and raise prices and rents. The working man then cries for higher pay.

MUST REDUCE RENTS.

"The first step to bring about normal pre-war conditions is to reduce the cost of living," he said, "and the first step to reduce the high cost of living is to reduce rents.

"The war," he adds, "has developed newer and better and cheaper methods of construction which can now be utilized by the individual. And right now—not next month or six months from now—the contractors, being largely idle, will take lower profits to themselves. Those who wait, who hold off hoping for lower prices, will surely be left behind. When building does start it will start with a rush. A method will be made to crowd two years' business into a few months. It will be a great race. And to win, we must 'Build Now.'"

Get Busy and Build Now, Says President Harriman of Chamber of Commerce

Editor Boston American—The Boston American is to be congratulated upon having the foresight to inaugurate a "Build Now" campaign. What both America and Europe need is to get busy, and to produce more than has ever been produced before. The war has seriously disorganized business and the tremendous increase in prices resulting from the waste and destruction of the great struggle has made people hesitate to enter upon new projects, particularly those projects involving new construction.

A large portion of our population must always be engaged in producing the daily necessities of life, such as food and clothing, but there is always a large increment of our labor which should be devoted to creating new and enlarged plants and factories, better homes and better facilities for the enjoyment of life.

If this increment of our population is busy times will be good, people will be happy, the productive capacity of the world will be increased and social and economic unrest will be at a minimum.

It takes courage and foresight to start the construction of new buildings, public and private, when prices are high, but American business is based upon those qualities, and I believe they will not be lacking at the present time. The Boston American can do much to foster a feeling of confidence by waging an active and vigorous "Build Now" campaign.

Yours very truly, BOSTON CHAMBER OF COMMERCE,
By H. J. Harriman, President.

MURAD
THE TURKISH CIGARETTE

Oriental Turkish tobacco charmed the natives hundreds of years ago.

And when travelers visited the Orient, a new delight awaited and thrilled them—in smoking Turkish cigarettes.

The tobacco in Murad is 100% Turkish and is gathered from those famous lands—and Murads are both charming and thrilling.

True they are a little more expensive than ordinary cigarettes—but oh, such a difference!

HANSON FEARS BREAD LINES IN CITIES

Seattle Mayor at City Club Urges Public Works Construction as Remedy

"The United States should inaugurate the greatest era of construction of public works in the history of this country," declared Mayor Ole Hanson of Seattle, speaking before the Employers' Association of Massachusetts at the City Club.

"I note with pleasure," he continued, "that your State and your city are going in that direction. We should develop during the slack time. In my judgment in a few short months, if we do not do this, men will not be walking the streets of our great cities asking for work—they will be walking the streets and asking for bread."

The "fighting Mayor" gave the history of the I. W. W. movement in Seattle, but disclaimed credit for settling the strike there. He said it was done by the Americanism of men in every walk of life, and traced the movement back to the ill treatment of lumbermen in the Oregon and Washington camps.

"We should construct public works only when the private employer has no work for that man to do," Hanson asserted. He advocated a homestead law for the benefit of the soldiers and sailors. He declared the last Congress had failed to lay out a definite track for business to proceed upon and that it must be done by the next Congress.

A flash of the humor that has made him famous as a platform speaker occurred here when he added, "I don't want to find fault with the last Congress. It is dead and no one sent any flowers."

"We need have no fear of Bolshevism in America if the workman is fairly treated, if he has a decent home, fair pay and an opportunity to educate his children. The uneducated child is the worst menace of the country," said the mayor.

"Bolshevism will not thrive if the private employers will adopt the golden rule as they have during the past year. I have found a disposition on the part of employers to be fair."

HIGH LIQUOR COST CUTS NUMBER OF PRISONERS

Springfield, May 14.—Umbrella contract work at Hampden County Jail is falling away behind schedule owing to the decreasing number of prisoners, and this in turn is ascribed by the probation officers largely to the increasing scarcity and high price of intoxicants.

The contract at the jail, entered into four years ago, was based on the availability of about 100 prisoners for umbrella manufacture, but at present only about half that number is available.

Figures are adduced to show that fewer habitual drunkards are being sentenced from the county courts, and this is held to be mainly due to the increasing difficulty in obtaining [illegible] liquors.

COMMANDER EXPLAINS BIG PART WEIGHT PLAYS IN 'NANCIES'

Richardson Details Difference Between the "Useful Load" and "Carried Load"

By COMMANDER HOLDEN C. RICHARDSON,

Pilot of Naval Seaplane NC-3, Who, by Special Permission of the Navy Department, Will Report the Great Trans-Atlantic Flight for the New York American.

Copyright, 1919, by Star Company.

The question of weight carried by the respective NC seaplanes in their attempt to "aerialize" the Atlantic Ocean, is one of paramount aspect.

The poundage is divided into two primary classes. First comes the weight of the structure of the seaplane itself, with its equipment. This is termed the "useful load." The other class is the carried load—that part of the total weight which is not literally of the ship.

The percentage of the "useful load" to the total load is 47 per cent. The weight of an NC flying ship when empty is approximately 15,100 pounds. This includes the wireless installation and all instruments for navigation, together with other equipment that is "stock" on the NC.

PLANE CARRIES 28,500 POUNDS.

Under full load for flying conditions, with the ten gasoline tanks "fractioned" with fuel, and with the oil supply, provisions, five passengers and other cargo, the NC seaplane will carry about 28,500 pounds when the "hop off" is made from Trepassey, Newfoundland, to the Azores.

When the NC boat is maintaining a uniform cruising speed, the total weight decreases at the rate of 600 pounds an hour, due to fuel consumption. The total gasoline carried weighs about 11,800 pounds.

The lubricating oil at the start weighs approximately 500 pounds. For the crew and their provisions, 1,000 pounds is allowed. This includes rations for food and five pounds of provisions and water per man. Ten gallons of water are allowed for radiator purposes and half that amount for human consumption.

ANCHORS CHECK DRIFTING.

The weight requirement will cause the elimination of regular ground anchors from Trepassey to the Azores. Sea anchors are provided to reduce drifting in case a seaplane is disabled at sea. They also increase safety by enabling the planes to be held head to the wind.

One question which is asked concerns breakages at sea, such as split propeller blades or engine replacements. These handicaps are totally unforeseen as a rule, and to economize in weight it would be entirely out of the question to carry along extra parts or surplus propellers.

It is one of the purposes of the station ships, which have been stretched across the designated route, and to which I referred in a previous article as "clerks of the course," to aid in directional capacities, but they are important also as repair stations.

A propeller, which is under a stress and strain of many thousands of pounds, is apt to crack after constant and prolonged usage.

SPARE PARTS ON SHIPS.

On each sailing ship, such as the first one, the U. S. S. Baltimore, at Halifax Harbor, or the destroyers which are stationed fifty miles apart on the route, are spare parts, ranging from wires and bolts to entire motor units. On these ships are NC detachments. On board also are liberal quantities of gasoline and oil and special refueling arrangements, which cannot be described in detail at this time for various reasons. A system has been installed whereby each seaplane may be refuelled speedily and conveniently through a hose leading to a seaplane tied up astern for the purpose.

No detail has been overlooked in assisting the NC boats and their crews in the big leap. First aid kits are carried on each seaplane and the crews are thoroughly versed in their use. However, further accommodations of this character are provided on board the "way" ships in addition to accommodations for the various crews of the oceanic flying men at the end of each leg of the flight.

COMFORTABLE ON BOARD.

I may say it is very comfortable in our flying "houses." The hulls are highly waterproof and "seaworthy." This means that the wind does not penetrate with a velocity that might be expected through the openings in the hull. The heads of the pilots barely clear the turtle back hull, and our one-piece leather suits, goggles and helmets keep the cold well out of our systems. The helmets are of the "inter-communicatory" type, which permit members of the crew to converse with one another.

The total distance between Rockaway Air Station and Plymouth, England, our goal, is 3,925 miles. At no time during that leap will we be cut off from the world, unless, of course, we meet with disaster.

Through our wireless system, a complete telegraph and telephone arrangement, we will send and receive messages as often as is warranted. This system includes a wireless direction indicator. The requirements of our wireless system give us a radius of approximately 200 miles while in the air, and of 100 to 150 miles while on the water.

EXPLAINS WIRELESS SYSTEM.

The electric current is provided by an electric generator operated by a wind-driven propeller. The current is delivered to storage batteries.

In addition to operating the wireless set, the storage batteries feed a complete lighting system for the interior of the boat and for the wing tip and tail lights, as well as lights for night landing. In the latter case, however, I explained in a previous article written for the American, that two magnesium flares are placed at the bow to assist in landing.

Oftentimes I have heard layman comment on the apparently frail appearance of metal wing fittings—they call them the "joints"—where complicated structures are brought together in a pyramidal form with consequent concentration of stresses. To indicate how safe we feel with our metallic parts, I will state that the structural fittings in general are of crome vanadium steel of an ultimate strength of 150,000 pounds per square inch.

WIRE SUPPORTS STRONG.

The wires on which we depend for flying, landing and control are many times as strong as necessary to perform the work they are called on to accomplish. They are of standard woven aeroplane cord wire.

GOOD PROSPECT OF START BY 'NANCIES'

United States Navy has been waiting since Secretary of the Navy Daniels approved the daring plan for the trans-ocean flight, and the men seemed to sense it as they worked quietly about the big ships.

At daybreak the wind was right. Unless there is a radical change in conditions, the start is certain. Were it not for the notoriously tricky weather of Newfoundland it might be asserted positively that both fliers will jump off this evening.

ONLY a slip of cable holds the two air liners to the mooring buoys. A twist of the wrist will release them when Commander John H. Towers gives the word for the start, and less than two minutes later both planes will be in the air. From Captain Cranshaw of the flagship Aroostook down to the stokers in the holds, every man in the American flotilla is praying for a westerly wind by evening and clear air over the ocean outside.

MECHANICS WORK ALL NIGHT.

The mechanics toiled over the planes all night. The NC-3 was at the stern of the Aroostook until midnight, while her engines were inspected and every inch of her hull and wings examined. On deck Commander Towers conferred with his brother officers, checking up equipment and calculating the weight of the supplies placed in the cockpit.

Lieutenant-Commander Bellinger was busy with charts in his cabin, for his NC-1 was at her moorings with all arrangements completed and a naval guard keeping watch over her.

If the NC-4, which suffered engine trouble last week on the initial hop to Halifax, arrives here from Chatham, Mass., immediately after the NC-1 and NC-3 she may follow across the ocean by herself, hoping to join her sister ships at the Azores. But unless she arrives within two or three days it is unlikely that she will attempt the ocean flight.

The destroyers which have put to sea to mark the air route for the American seaplanes must be re-fueled within six days, and it is thought improbable that the navy will keep them all at sea for the attempt by one seaplane if the other two have completed their hop to the Azores.

Dirigible C-5, With Helping Wind, Heads Up Coast for St. John's

Montauk Point, L. I., May 14.—The big navy dirigible C-5 left the Montauk naval air station at 8 o'clock this morning in an attempt to fly to St. John's, N. F., without stopping.

Weather conditions were excellent when the balloon lifted anchor. A south wind, blowing at the rate of fifteen miles an hour, aided the dirigible.

There was no official announcement that the "Blimp," as the dirigible is called, was headed for Newfoundland.

But it was learned shortly after her departure that the radio station here had notified stations at Chatham, Mass., Bar Harbor, Me., and Portland, Me., to look out for her. A message announcing the departure of the balloon was also sent broadcast to be picked up by all ships and radio stations along the coast.

A message was sent to Commander Maxfield at Washington informing him that the C-5 had started and that everything went off in tip-top shape.

CRUISER AWAITS ARRIVAL.

The station here asked Washington report the departure to the United States cruiser Chicago, which is at St. John's awaiting the "Blimp's" arrival.

Every "gob" at the naval station was ordered out at 5 o'clock this morning in readiness for the flight. Several men had been working on the balloon all night following her test flight to New London yesterday afternoon.

At 5:30 the doors of the hangar were moved back, and at 7:15 a blast from the siren signalled all hands. The men piled from their mess hall with a cheer and rushed across the grass to the hangar, where they lined up on each side of the dirigible.

Lieutenant (junior grade) Ralph Norris of Chelsea, Mass., gave orders to the men as 300 "gobs" assisted at the "landing." Ten thermos bottles, containing coffee and water, and boxes containing sandwiches and the navy standby—beans—were placed aboard.

At 7:20 the siren blew another blast and the men grabbed the ropes to hold the dirigible down. In response to a few sharp orders they moved her off 1,000 feet from the hangar, directly facing the south wind.

COIL IN COMMAND.

Officers of the station gathered around and shook hands with the crew. Lieutenant-Commander E. W. Coil of Marcetta, Ohio, the commander and pilot, was the first to get into the basket. The others in the crew followed. They were: Coxswain, Lieutenant (junior grade) E. O. Campbell, Lynn, Ky.; pilot, Lieutenant (junior grade) J. B. Lawrence, St. Paul, Minn.; radio operator, Ensign M. H. Estorley, Youngstown, O.; engineers, Chief Machinist Mates O. H. Blackburn, Walker, Minn.; and T. L. Mooreman, Lawyers, Va.

As he entered the basket, Lieutenant Campbell said: "God be with us till we meet again."

"We will be with the seaplanes yet," said Commander Coil, and he gave orders for the dirigible to move off.

At 9 o'clock sharp the balloon rose in the air, headed south, directly into the wind, circled around in the opposite direction and then headed directly north with the south wind at its tail, while a big shout went up from the hundreds gathered at the station. She was flying at an altitude of about 500 feet when she disappeared to the northeast.

CARRIES GAS FOR 1,500-MILE TRIP

The "Blimp's" ordinary speed with no wind is about fifty miles an hour, but with the wind favoring as it did at the start she is expected to average between sixty-five and seventy miles.

If she meets with no accident and flies directly to St. John's, her course will be only 900 miles in length and she will reach her destination about 9 o'clock tonight. She is expected to anchor at Quidi Vidi, just outside St. John's.

The C-5 carried enough gasoline to make a trip of 1,500 miles. She has two twelve-cylinder union motors of 150-horsepower and two two-bladed propellers. She is 192 feet long and has a capacity of 170,000 cubic feet of gas. The collie dog, "Blimp," which runs along the ground for a considerable distance whenever the dirigible makes a flight followed its usual custom today, running three miles along the shore in the direction taken by the C-5.

NC-4, Undaunted by Delay, Tries Again to Fly to Trepassey

Chatham, May 14.—United States trans-Atlantic seaplane NC-4 "slid off" Cape Cod at 9:05 today, circled high above the naval air station, and then started on the 900-mile "jump" to Trepassey, N. F.

Failing to catch up with her sister planes, the NC-4 and NC-3, Commander A. C. Read of the NC-4 said he would make the long flight from Newfoundland to the Azores alone. If weather conditions along the Nova Scotia coast are adverse, the NC-4 will put into Halifax tonight and will proceed to Trepassey tomorrow morning.

Commander Read and his men were undaunted by the hard luck they experienced. Forced by motor trouble to put in here last week while on the first leg of the trans-ocean flight—Rockaway Beach, L. I., to Halifax, N. S.—the NC-4 had remained stormbound. Gales from the northeast which swept down the coast abated today, however. The wind shifted to the southeast and the sea became calm. The airmen determined to make the long "jump" to Newfoundland.

PERSONNEL OF CREW.

Besides Lieutenant-Commander A. C. Read of Lyme, N. H., others aboard the seaplane were: Pilot, Lieutenant E. F. Stone of Livonia, N. Y.; pilot, Lieutenant J. G. Walter Hinton of Van Wert, O.; radio operator, Ensign H. C. Rodd of Cleveland, O.; engineer, Chief Special Mechanic E. H. Howard of Cutchogue, L. I.; reserve pilot, Engineer J. L. Breese of New York City.

The airmen were up early this morning. They were ready for the "hop off" at daybreak, but a fog off the coast made it impossible to proceed for a time. Shortly after 8 a. m. the seaplane was run out on the beach near the air station. She was taken on a trial spin and then came down. Her motors were tuned up. In about an hour NC-4 again "slid off" the beach. Circling high above the air station and then out over Chatham Bar, the giant plane finally pointed her nose out to sea and shot away.

With glasses, those on shore could and naval craft en route follow the air craft for a distance of ten miles. Then she sank into a faint fog bank.

IDEAL FLYING DAY.

The sun was shining warm and bright, the wind was at the rate of twenty miles an hour from the southeast, and there was hardly a ripple on the waters of shore as the aviators got away. It was an ideal day for the flight.

NC-4 will not sight land until she reaches the Nova Scotia shore. Like her sister transocean fliers, she is equipped with wireless and she kept in constant touch with shore stations

CUMMINS MADE PRESIDENT PRO TEM OF SENATE

Republicans, With Lodge as Leader, Organize and Name Committee Chairmen

Washington, May 14.—The Senate Republican conference today selected Senator Cummins of Iowa as president pro tempore of the Senate on nomination by the Progressives. Senator Lodge was re-elected chairman of the Republican conference and the majority leader of the Senate. Senator Curtis of Kansas was re-elected the Republican whip, and Senator Wadsworth of New York was re-elected secretary of the conference.

The conference named George A. Sanderson of Iowa as secretary of the Senate and David S. Barry of Providence, R. I., as sergeant at arms. Carl A. Loeffler of the District of Columbia was selected assistant doorkeeper.

Senator Lodge was authorized to name a committee of committees of nine on order of business, which is the majority "steering committee" of nine members, and a committee on patronage of three members. Other members will be announced later by Senator Lodge.

PROGRESSIVES TO FIGHT.

Following a report from this committee, the progressives, led by Senator Borah, will make their fight on Senator Penrose and Warren for the chairmanship of the finance and military committees respectively.

Senator McCumber of North Dakota will be chairman of the steering committee and Senator New of Indiana will be chairman of the committee on patronage. There were forty-three of the forty-nine Senators in attendance. The absentees were Senator Lafollette, Groona, Cummings, Townsend, Fall and Lenroot.

The conference adopted the resolution sponsored by Senator Norris of Nebraska that no senator can be a member of more than two of the ten important Senate committees. The rule that no committee should exceed seventeen in number of membership was also re-enacted.

AS TO SENATOR PENROSE.

The still disputed question of Senator Penrose being chairman of the finance committee, Senator Smoot of the appropriations committee and Senator Warren of Wyoming for military affairs was referred to the committee on committees, which was directed to be enabled until after Congress convenes next Monday in smoothing out the controversies between the old guard and the Progressive Republicans in regard to the organization of the major Senate committees.

Who's Who in the 26th Division

CAPT. JAMES A. WALSH.

Captain James A. Walsh is twenty-seven years of age and was born in Lewiston, Maine. He is a nephew of Bishop Louis S. Walsh of Portland, Maine, and James S. Murphy, president of Stickney & Poor Spice Company, Boston.

Captain Walsh graduated from Georgetown University in 1913 and was supervisor of athletics there in 1913-14.

Since then he has been employed in an executive capacity at the Lewiston Bleachery & Dye Works, of which his father was agent prior to death. His mother, Mrs. Mary E. Walsh, is a leading figure in Catholic women's charitable societies.

Captain Walsh's military career began when he enlisted as a private in the First Maine N. F. A. (Milliken regiment) June, 1917. The following month he was commissioned first lieutenant and assigned to the 101st Trench Mortar Battery at the time of its formation.

He joined the 51st Artillery Brigade of the 26th Division at Boxford, Mass., shortly after and went overseas with the outfit in October, 1917.

In France he attended the artillery school at Coquidan, the Fourth French Army Trench Mortar School and the American Army Trench Artillery School at Langre.

Receiving the highest grade in the course he became an instructor in the Trench Artillery officers' section at the A. T. A. School.

In September, 1918, he returned to the 101st T. M. B. as commanding officer, being promoted to captain the following month. He served as chief officer of this organization until demobilized at Camp Devens in March, 1919.

This battery has the distinction of serving longer in the lines, in every large operation in which the United States army took part and with fewer casualties, than any trench mortar battery in France. Captain Walsh resides at No. 12 Mayfair street, Roxbury.

BELGIUM STILL HAS 210,000 UNDER ARMS

Brussels, May 14.—Belgium has demobilized 112,000 soldiers since the armistice, but retains 210,000 under arms, the War Minister announces. He promised to do his utmost to reduce the army to 100,000 men without delay.

REVENUE STAMP FOR MEDICINES ISSUED

Government Tax Is 1 Cent on Each 25 Cents or Fraction of Retail Price

Washington, May 14.—Revenue stamps of nine denominations, ranging from one to forty cents, have been issued by the government to be affixed to all toilet articles and patented medicines when sold at retail.

The tax is fixed at one cent on each twenty-five cents or fraction of the retail purchase price.

The tax is made applicable to all medicinal preparations sold under a patent or trademark or produced by a manufacturer having or claiming to have exclusive right or title to make such preparations.

"Medicine" is defined in the regulations as a remedy for disease "of human or animal body."

Many substances not used solely for medicinal purposes, such as boric acid or licorice, if advertised or sold under a trademark as medicinal preparations were also subject to the tax.

The tax does not apply under the regulations to food preparations, poisons, insecticides, medicinal disinfectants, serums and antitoxins, or vaccines and bacterines "not advertised to the general public."

Soaps and soap preparations are practically the only toilet articles not included in the taxable list under the regulations.

The Jamaica ginger industry received a body blow in Quincy District Court today when three defendants were fined a total of $275 on charges of selling it as an intoxicating beverage.

Joseph Cantagno, a druggist at No. 479 Washington street, Quincy, was fined $100 for exposing the ginger for sale. Joseph Cardi of No. 265 Water street, Quincy, was fined $75 for selling ginger which was 90 per cent alcohol, but sentence was suspended. Enos Warsher, a grocer at No. 55 Copeland street, Quincy, was fined $100 for selling and exposing.

The cases grew out of a raid directed by Inspector Hanlon last Saturday night.

111 HIGH-GRADE CATTLE ARRIVE IN BOSTON

The largest cattle arrival in Boston since the embargo was lifted will be the finer grades of stock coming will show today in the arrival at this port of 111 blooded cattle on the Leyland Line freighter Caledonian from Montevideo, Uru. The cattle are consigned to William Cook of Mansfield, O.

The Caledonian brought in eight passengers. The British freighter City of Manila, from Calcutta, India, and Colombo, Ceylon, which also arrived here today, brought five passengers.

The use of freight vessels by ocean passengers abated the difficulties of getting passenger accommodations, especially between the Orient and Europe.

Three of the five passengers on the City of Manila are missionaries from Calcutta, who built seven thousand miles out of their way to get to England on account of the forward zone of returning East Indian troops through the Red Canal and other obstacles to passenger traffic eastward from India. The three, for traveling, Englishmen were Verdun G. Parr, Calcutta police official; John L. P. Flaxley, civil engineer of Calcutta, and Frank Sharp commission merchant.

The other two passengers on the City of Manila were Mrs. Percy Cole of Middleboro, Mass., a returning Y. M. C. A. worker, and Abdul Rahmen, East Indian commission merchant of New York city.

PLYMOUTH LINE OPENS JUNE 12; RATES HIGHER

Service between Boston and Plymouth, which was discontinued as a war measure, will be resumed June 12, with increased rates, according to announcement of the Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company today. Provided the Public Service Commission approves a tariff filed by the company, beginning June 12, it will cost adults $1.16 instead of 75 cents to go from Boston to Plymouth by boat, and the rates for children will also be increased from 35 to 60 cents. The new tariff rates, however, include a schedule from June 12 to September 1 for parties of twenty-five and over in number, which considerably reduces the cost of round trips.

POLICEMAN FOILS THEFT OF $400 LIBERTY BONDS

The larceny of $400 worth of Liberty Bonds from a window at No. 52 Devonshire street, was prevented early today by Patrolman Marks of the City Hall avenue police station.

His attention attracted by the sound of breaking glass, Patrolman Marks ran to the scene, and discovered a hole in the window of Ernest H. Smith's store. Apparently the job will appeal to the Department. Frightened away, as he was not in the store when the officer arrived. A quantity of the bonds were taken on him and was found in the street.

GALLI-CURCI IS BITTER IN CHARGES

Complaint Says the Husband Violated Marital Obligations —Alleges He Struck Her

Chicago, May 14.—The ways, "dark and devious," of Luigi C. Curci, according to received language in Mme. Amelita Galli-Curci's preliminary plea for divorce, are described in harsher terms in an amendment filed in the Superior Court.

It is a calendar of iniquities—"in direct violation of his marital duties and obligations."

The soprano sets forth a long list of rivals with whom her husband dallied while accompanying her on various tours.

BITTERNESS IN COMPLAINT.

There is a note of bitterness in her complaint that "during the said years and said dates the defendant was living on and being supported by money earned by your oratrix while engaged by her business or professional capital of a singer—and that the defendant's practice was to take out of the earnings of your oratrix."

"A certain chorus girl" was Curci's partner in iniquity in the December of January 1917, in the city of Chicago, it is charged.

On the 15th day of May, the same year, it was a "certain show girl" who is complained of.

On April 20, 1917, according to the amended bill, in the city of Tusla, Okla., it was a chamber maid who served with Luigi—better described by the defendant as of ebony color and beautiful black eyes.

On April 25 there was another woman (white) known as a chambermaid.

WAS STRUCK WITH FISTS, CHARGE

"A certain woman picked up on a Boston street" on March 19, 1918, is noted next.

An affair in the New York flat occupied by Curci and his brother, Cenaro, is listed under the date of February 1, 1915.

Back in Chicago "a certain chorus girl" appears again on the scene being in "certain hotels on two separate and distinct occasions."

Various occasions where Mme Galli-Curci was threatened, struck and beaten are mentioned in another insert for the original bill.

"On or about January 1, 1916, in the city of Chicago," it relates, "the defendant herein with malice and malice struck your oratrix a violent blow in the face and over the arms with a certain cane and thereby inflicted much injury and pain and suffering in mind and body."

Another blow—this delivered with the fist—followed on November 15, 1917. On this occasion Curci "wrenched her arms while in the possession of anger, causing much pain and anguish."

REMICK BOYS TO HOLD BALL TOMORROW NIGHT

Talent from all parts of Greater Boston, including Russell Howard and Katherine Tobin, most popular New England dancers, Daley and Harris, latest dancing whirlwinds, will present their latest tango and jazz exhibitions, Ines Hall, direct from Keith's Chevalli, and other well leading theatres in town, will take part in the dance to be given tomorrow to be presented tomorrow evening at the reception and ball to be tendered to the Remick Boys at Crowley's Summer Ball Room, Revere Beach.

The dance is under the auspices of the young men of Greater Boston and the boys have been working hard for several weeks to make the affair one of the biggest of the season.

One of the star features of the evening will be "The Remick Boys" Charlie Ray, Freddie Williams and Harry Bonvine, Boston's own Trio in song; Solsberg Rock and Selmon, boys extraordinary in their surprise features; Marks and Daley, Howard and Tobin, Inez Hall and others just as good.

Aside from the cabaret and novelties there will be plenty of dancing for all.

RAIN SPOILS STREET DANCE SO STATEHOUSE IS USED

Columbus, O., May 14.—When the 4,000 boys of the Thirty-seventh Division rolled into Columbus a big dance was arranged for their pleasure.

Several blocks of asphalt were roped off and "swiped" for the dance. But it rained.

"Bring the orchestra into the State House," said Adjutant-General Lamson. The band and the horse and girls danced on the historic old rotunda to the "we are home" tune.

Iron Crosses Are Marked Down to a Nickel

Not long ago a German would risk his life for an Iron Cross; now he will give up an Iron Cross for the Teuton equivalent of a nickel. That Iron Crosses were a glut on the market with American soldiers the principal buyers at the bargain sales was made known by Captain Smith of the former Dutch steamship Dubbeldam, discharging her 1,000 tons of ballast at Commonwealth pier. The Dubbeldam is here from Kiel for a cargo of flour.

Old junk is the principal merchandise of the cruisers now on sale in the smuggled area of clerking and Capt. Smith was told that it was one he purchased for five cents was an excellent piece of workmanship. The Dubbeldam is at Plymouth, England, on her way across for coal and ballast.

CLINTON TROOPS WANT NO MORE BANQUETS

Clinton, May 14. — Overseas soldiers are opposed to the further taxing of the public for "fireworks and banquets" in their honor, according to Captain James T. Doane of K Company, 101st Infantry, and as for parades, they never want to march in them.

Captain Doane, probably the first overseas officer to say that the people are going too far in the expenditure of money in welcoming the boys back, is fighting the raising of $2,500 by public subscription for a banquet and field day for the soldiers.

Captain Doane declared that he was opposing the further assessment of the public for parades because he knew all the men in uniform felt as he did about it.

"They feel that it is a waste of money," he declares. "The people have been asked to contribute enough, and the boys appreciate it. The money the town has appropriated from the public funds is sufficient for a celebration, without canvassing the people in their homes or at their work. The money to be raised $500 goes for fireworks and $400 for prizes."

The selectmen have appropriated $2,000 for the entertainment and welcoming of Clinton's heroes. It is planned to use this for a banquet on November 11, and to raise $2,500 by popular subscription for a parade, fireworks and general field day on July 4.

Members of the Clinton company say they had "bonncoup" parades and saw fireworks enough in France to last them a lifetime. "If they want to spend this money let them charge it up to the account of amusements for small boys," suggest the doughboys. "We don't want it."

BROOKLINE GIRL SINGER MISSING FROM HOME

ly knowing it and without leaving any note of explanation behind her.

Among the personal effects she took were several letters she had received.

REPORTED ENGAGED.

Among these letters may have been one or more which she had been receiving from a Brookline youth, formerly a pupil at Wilbraham Academy but now a soldier with the American Army of occupation, stationed at Coblenz, Germany. The Brookline police understand that Miss Nason was engaged to this soldier, although it is not stated that any engagement had been announced.

Miss Nason returned about 9 o'clock last night. At 3 o'clock in the morning Mrs. Nason awakened to notice that a light was burning in the hall. It had been left burning accidentally by some member of the family beside the missing girl.

The mother arose, put out the light, and happened to find that Miss Nason was not in her room, nor was she in the house.

For lack of any other explanation the family assumed that the girl must be walking in her sleep and have walked out of the house. Report was made to the Brookline police.

Later investigation, however, showed that the girl had dressed herself and had taken a few personal effects, including some letters.

POLICE SEARCH IN VAIN.

Meanwhile Sergeant Stephen J. Hallinan of the Brookline police, with a detail of patrolmen, had been searching around town in the police auto patrol. At 8 o'clock, when the day force came on duty, the case was reported to these officers. Word was also sent to the police of Boston and other nearby places.

The description given the police is as follows:

Five feet five inches tall; weighs 118 pounds; fair complexion; brown hair; hazel eyes.

The clothing she wore away was described thus: Blue silk dress, blue serge military cape, tan shoes and stockings, black straw hat with pompon on top.

Miss Nason was graduated from Brookline High School last June. Since then she has been working as a stenographer. The soldier to whom she is said to be engaged formerly lived in Connecticut. His family recently moved to Brookline.

RICE TO EXPLORE AMAZON WITH HIS WIFE

Outfitting His Yacht in New York and Expects to Go Beyond Point Reached Before

New York, May 14.—Dr. Alexander Hamilton Rice is here outfitting his yacht for his fourth exploration trip up the Amazon River. He will be accompanied by his wife, who was Mrs. George D. Widener. The party expects to be ready to leave by the first of June.

The Rices have closed their magnificent homes at Newport and Boston, and will forego all the comforts which their great wealth insures to face the ascent of hardships in a part of South America never before visited by white man or woman.

They expect to penetrate the jungle deeper far beyond that part of the river which they visited on their last trip, on which tour they discovered the lost tribe of real female Amazons. But Mrs. Rice is no less anxious for the start than is her intrepid husband.

We intend to explore and map a large section of the Upper Amazon, known as the Amazonas. We shall gather geological specimens and study the diseases we encounter," said Dr. Rice.

"We went up the Amazon River 2,100 miles to San Gabriel and Santa Isabel, but our journey was ended there by the unusual action of the inky stream. It dropped steadily, when by all laws of nature it should have arisen. Just why this was so we hope to discover this time.

"Also, there is a record that some hundreds of years ago, sometime about 1540, we think, a Portuguese adventurer found an inland canal which joined up the Amazon with another river far up toward their sources. If we can fix this canal, and we believe we can, we shall, perhaps, be able to explain some of the eccentricities of the great Brazilian rivers.

"We shall take a wireless field outfit to aid us in establishing our whereabouts. We can pick up the time signals from Arlington and will therefore be able to determine our longitude. We shall have five scientific men along to record our observations."

Leaves Dime Each to Relatives; $40,000 to Tufts College

Burlington, Vt., May 14.—Former Mayor Harvey Heray of Barre, after cutting off his relatives, including his sister, with a dime each, left Tufts College $40,000. His will has been filed for probate here.

Heray died at Burlington, April 19, aged eighty-eight years. His will was dated June 4, 1914, and revokes all previous wills. He stipulated in his will that the fund of $40,000 is to exhibits at Tufts the "Harvey Heray '57 class memorial fund." The income is to be used for lectures on the following subjects: Freshman class, material evolution; sophomore class, vegetable evolution; junior class, animal evolution; senior class, cosmic evolution.

Mrs. Clara A. Templeton of Washington, D. C., his sister, and several nieces and nephews, are left 10 cents each. Goddard Seminary of Barre gets $300.

Mr. Heray was a graduate of Tufts in the first class of 1857.

ACCUSED ROBBER OF GIRLS TAKEN AT CANTON

Canton, May 14.—A long chase that has led through Springfield, Lowell, Worcester and all over New York State came to an end here with the arrest of Zarossa, alias Stanley Ross, wanted in New York for leading Polish girls astray and for bail forfeiture.

Zarossa, or Ross, as he has been known in Canton, was traced to the Canton Manufacturing Company, where he was working as a garment cutter. He was called to the office by a decoy telegram and was there covered by the guns of the chief of police of Canton and William Yellin and Louis B. Siegel, New York detectives, who trailed him from that State.

Ross' method of procedure was to gain the confidence of Polish servant girls and then, under promise of marriage, induce them to withdraw their savings from the banks. He then robbed them outright, according to the charge made by the detectives, or failing that, chloroformed them and took the money.

"Philly" to Become Storage Centre for Ammunition

Philadelphia, Pa., May 14.—According to announcement made by Acting Secretary of War Crowell, Philadelphia is to become the national centre for the storing of ammunition.

The announcement was made in connection with plans of the War Department to erect, at the Frankford Arsenal, machinery for the manufacture of one million rounds of small arms ammunition a dty.

Machinery will also be stored by the government for the manufacture of other kinds of ammunition. Additional shops will be built at Frankford, where machinery used in making artillery ammunition may be put up at short notice. During peace times small quantities of ammunition, sufficient to meet the army's needs, will be turned out.

The Amatol Arsenal and the Tullytown Arsenal will be kept in condition for immediate use in loading ammunition into shell containers.

Other arsenals decided upon are plants at Edgewood, Md.; Rock Island, Ill.; Watervliet, N. Y.; Watertown, Mass.; Old Hickory, Tenn.; Rochester, N. Y.; Erie, Pa.; Chicago, Ill.; Madison, Wis., and Springfield, Mass.

Announcement of the proposed strike of public service employes was made here today.

Miss Julia O'Connor, international president of the Telephone Operators' Union, is en route to San Francisco from Boston to take charge of the Pacific strike for better pay.

SHORT GASOLINE MEASURE FOUND AT GARAGES

70 Per Cent. of Pumps Inaccurate, Declares State Weight Commissioner in Crusade

Automobile owners have been given short measure in buying gasoline at many garages and refilling stations, owing to defects in the pumps, according to Thure Hanson, State commissioner of weights and standards, who has completed the testing of pumps in different parts of the State.

More than seventy per cent. were found to be inaccurate, he declares.

As a result, proprietors of garages and refilling stations will be required to test their pumps every six, and oftener if required, or be held accountable if their pumps go wrong, Mr. Hanson stated.

Seventy pumps were tested, and only four gave correct measure, Mr. Hanson stated. We found forty-three that were giving under measure and twenty-one that were giving over measure. Twelve were within the limit of tolerance.

"If any pump is found to be out of order or is inaccurate henceforth I will hold the owner or the operator strictly responsible for it," he declared. "I will insist that every garage owner or proprietor of a filling station shall test his pumps every day at the beginning of the day and oftener, if required."

Nearly 350 proprietors of garages and filling stations attended a demonstration in the east wing of the auditorium under the direction of Mr. Hanson today, when the correct way to test a pump was pointed out.

"A pump will get out of order like every other mechanical device," said Mr. Hanson. "But it should not remain out of order."

ALUMNI AT HARVARD QUITS SEVER QUADRANGLE

Harvard Alumni Association has abandoned the Sever Quadrangle in the college yard for its annual Commencement Day meeting, going to the Fogg drill hall on Oxford street, recently purchased by Harvard. No reason has been given for the change which takes the members indoors for the annual meeting.

PASTOR SLAIN IN WOODS, FRIENDS BELIEVE

Pawtucket, May 14.—That Rev. Ernest M. Webber was robbed and murdered in the Jamestown Woods, is the opinion today of members of the missing minister's congregation in Central Falls, and they have gone in large numbers to search for the body.

The clergyman, who was last seen Friday, was at first thought to have become mentally unbalanced and to be wandering in the woods, where he had frequently conducted religious rituals. The fact which he occasionally visited was searched today, and when it was found that it had not been occupied a general alarm was sent out.

His wife was at first inclined to believe that his mind had weakened under strain and that he would ultimately come back. Today, however, she joined those who believe in the murder theory and is on the point of nervous breakdown.

The clergyman always carried a considerable sum of money on his person, and is known to have been particularly well supplied with funds when he left his home in Central Falls on Friday.

This section of Rhode Island has recently experienced more holdups than in all its previous history, gangsters are infesting the cities and the woodland country near Newport, preying upon the public, and not stopping at murder when their actions protest.

Jamestown Woods have been frequently the scene of crime of violence. Old men, women and boys have been robbed and sometimes beaten for objecting to the thefts.

The members of Rev. Mr. Webber's church, some of them armed, are boating on these dense woods today, confident that within the next few hours they will have come upon conditions of their liking.

Incidentally, the discussion which the disappearance of the minister has caused has revived the agitation for a State Police force. Small Rhode Island towns are favorite fields for the gangsters, as the police force usually consists of one man.

Former Judge Admits His Ownership of Seized Liquor

Portland, Me., May 14.—Former Judge Charles L. Donahue of the Cumberland County Probate Court admitted that the 100 quarts of liquor seized at the American Railway Express Company office was his property, according to Deputy Sheriff Graham, who made the seizure.

The liquor was consigned to the former judge and under the law may be claimed by him when the ten days of its libeling has expired.

United States District Attorney Merrill would take no action on the case, saying that the State Court had priority.

MAINE APPLIES FOR GOVERNMENT TRUCKS

Augusta, Me., May 14.—Paul D. Sargent, chief engineer of the Maine Highway Commission, being notified that the Federal government has some motor trucks on hand that may be utilized by various States in their highway work, filed an application for Maine's share some three weeks ago and expects them to arrive soon. The announcement said that over $45,000,000 worth of trucks were to be distributed. Maine's share is figured to be about 1 per cent. of the total or about 700 trucks.

ACCUSE 120 OF REPEATING AT ELECTION

Hoboken Republicans Are Arrested as Result of Complaint of Mayor

Hoboken, N. J., May 14.—Twins are arrested on charges of being Republican "repeaters" in the election of city commissioners. 120 men were paralyzed by Justice Swayze pending a hearing, after returns indicated their accuser, Mayor Patrick Grgdin, had won the election by a vote of four to one.

OWNERS OF DAMS APPEAL IN PISCATAQUIS COUNTY

Dover, Me., May 14.—Owners of dams in this section of the country have taken an appeal from the order of Willis E. Parsons, State commissioner of inland fisheries and game, that fishways be installed in all dams on the Piscataquis River, to permit the advent of sea salmon to the upriver waters. The ground for this action of the dam owners is that the cost of installing the fishways at East Dover, at the Brown mills of the American Woolen Company in Dover and at the Foxcroft Mills of the same corporation, estimated at from $5,000 to $6,000, would be greater than the benefit derived from their installation.

30 HEELMAKERS QUIT JAMAICA PLAIN PLANT

Thirty heelmakers at the Thomas G. Plant shoe factory in Jamaica Plain quit work without stating the cause of their grievance, according to a statement made at the factory today. Reports of a walkout affecting 400 or 500 workers were denied. It is expected that a committee of three from the heelmakers will wait upon the management today to state their case.

National Guard Is Favored by Baker

Washington, May 14.—Reorganization of the National Guard along the same lines as existed before the war has been approved informally by Secretary Baker. The War Department, he said, would favor the rebuilding of the guard, so as to permit the various states to supply the same units as were used in making up the sixteen divisions organized for service in France.

Secretary Baker said he thought this might be effected without any additional legislation.

He expressed the hope that some way would be found to permit the perpetuation of the insignia and unit designations organized in 1917.

EXTRA JACK SOLVES BALKY RIM TROUBLE

Demountable rims often give trouble by becoming bent or warped [illegible] over the felloe band [illegible] hammering only [illegible] in most cases, but with an extra jack the solution [illegible] the jack [illegible] upward a few [illegible] the felloe. If this is not the case it may cause excessive wear on the bearings and perhaps make the wheel ride unevenly.

HOW TO PREVENT LEAKY VALVE GUIDES

Misfiring, especially at low speeds, is often due to leaky valve guides, as air is sucked in and dilutes the mixture. The best remedy is to press out the old guides and press in new ones [illegible] of this may be too great or perhaps the guides are integral with the rest of the cylinder casting. To prevent leakage a makeshift method must be employed. Sheet metal [illegible] may be fashioned so that [illegible] the end of the valve stem [illegible] spring which rests [illegible] between the valve spring and the valve stem. This spring pushing upward, holds the felt in the thimble tight against the opening between the valve stem and its guide, effectually preventing the leakage of air.

Prospects for the success of the Indianapolis Liberty Sweepstakes indicate an automobile racing revival in America on the solid foundation of newly awakened public interest.

[illegible] regarding [illegible]

The Massachusetts Highway Commission has recently started a drive to stop dazzling lights. Inspectors co-operating with the local police will work all over the State. If you have not done something to regulate your own lights now is a good time to do it.

Dear Mr. Fixit—Do you know where it is in the State that a number of holdups of automobilists have occurred? I refer to some place near Boston where a gang of holdup men are working. R. S., Quincy.

It is said that at the old floating bridge between Lynn and Salem a gang of men have held up automobiles and by impersonating police officers made them pay for alleged violations of automobile regulations.

VALGER SHADES YOUNG BRITT IN FAST GO

By RINGSIDE

Benny Valger, brilliant French boxer, today stands out as one of the Queensberry game's leading 126-130 pound performers as a result of his victory over Frankie (Young) Britt of New Bedford, in a twelve-round bout at the Armory A. A.

While Britt is classed with the best lightweights in the country, he [illegible] by Valger [illegible] the latter has all the qualities which go to make a star ringman—speed, cleverness, generalship, courage, and the ability to score with a stinging punch.

The first two rounds of the contest were fairly even. At the opening of [illegible] the French [illegible] to box at a dizzy [illegible]

Valger continued his brilliant work in the fourth, fifth and sixth stanzas. [illegible] up to this stage of the [illegible]

Beginning [illegible] seventh chapter [illegible] to better advantage. The Frenchman displayed [illegible] of being tired as a result of [illegible] in the early part of the battle.

The New Bedford lightweight scored with many solid body blows in this round, while he also managed to land numerous stout hearted smashes to his opponent's head. Britt also kept well in the lead in the eight frame.

BENNY CLINCHES AWARD.

There was little action in the ninth round. Valger tossed off most of Britt's leads and had a slight shade the better of it.

The tenth and eleventh sessions were Britt's by a small margin. By [illegible] whirlwind finish in the twelfth, Valger made sure of getting [illegible] award.

In the semi-final tussle Phil Christie and Freddie Madden fought eight sizzling rounds to a draw.

[illegible] O'Brien won over Al Lane after six lively sessions of milling. In the [illegible] six-round scrap, Young [illegible] proved too classy for Mickey Snyder.

The show was the best held in Boston for several months and was witnessed by a packed house. More than [illegible] persons who desired to secure reservations were disappointed as a result of the limited seating capacity of the Grand Opera House.

SCHOOLBOY SPORTS

The prep. schools have entered the biggest number of athletes in the Harvard meet in the Stadium Saturday. Exeter, Andover and Worcester Academy lead all the others in the number of entries, having sixty-five between them. Exeter has twenty-seven, Andover and Worcester Academy fifteen.

English High, Boston Latin and East Boston have made the most entries for the Boston schools and should make a creditable showing against the prep. schools.

Chis Arbeene will compete in the running broad jump, and, if reports that are going around about his practice leaps are true, he has an excellent chance of leading in the first three.

Armstrong, who has just returned from over seas, where he has been for the past twelve months, will go in the 220-yard dash. Although he has not had much training he will be a hard one to beat, if he is anything like he good as he was last season.

Danny Whelton, winner of the hurdles in the regimentals, is training for the 220-yard low hurdles and should prove fast enough to collect a place for his school.

Dave Rubin, star swimmer of East Boston, and one of the [illegible] of the track team [illegible] season, has entered the quarter-mile.

Bluestein of English, and Ralph Corson of East Boston, are among the players entered in the 100-yard dash.

Bill Nolan, runner par excellence from Noddle Island, will be on the mark in the "220" and will probably be in the lead at the tape.

John Feeney, crack high jumper who has been beaten but three times, once by Warren Mansur and twice by Pep White, [illegible] of them all, will take a crack at this event and should place in the points.

FINNITY McMAHON, BROOKLINE HIGH SCHOOL, BASEBALL, FOOTBALL AND TRACK.

McMAHON is one of the twirlers on the Brookline High ball team and plays in the outfield when not in the box. He was centre on last Fall's football eleven and a member of the track team. His specialty on the track is putting the shot. He will graduate this year and will enter college in the Fall.

Boxing News and Notes

Benny Valger will make 133 pounds ringside for his twelve-round bout with Harry Carlson of Brockton, at the Fenway A. A. next Monday night.

George Robinson, Cambridge middleweight, and Young Ahearn, now of South Boston, will clash in the feature tussle of twelve frames at the Armory A. A. next Tuesday night. The frolic will be fought at catchweights.

The fans at the Armory A. A. show contributed $94.90 to the Hank Gowdy testimonial. You have got to hand it to the followers of the ring game when it comes to the appreciation of a real fighting man.

Marty Killilea, manager of Johnny Wilson, has received a flock of offers for matches since his protege beat Young Fisher. He is prepared to close with a Syracuse club for another contest between Wilson and Fisher.

Wilson is also ready to meet the winner of the Ahearn-Robinson contest. The Charlestown puncher has proved he is capable of giving either of these worthies an interesting evening.

There will be a bang-up boxing show in the State Armory, Charlestown, tomorrow night. It is for the Bunker Hill boys who helped deliver a solar-plexus blow to Kaiser [illegible] Senator Tom Green is [illegible] the Morning [illegible] committee which has charge of the affair.

Young Sacco, East Boston lightweight, will be pitted against Harry [illegible] in a twelve round tussle at Brockton Friday night.

Knockout for McGoorty

London, May 14.—Eddie McGoorty, American middleweight fighter, knocked out Harry Reeve of London in the third round of a carded fifteen round fight.

AMATEUR STARS ON DISPLAY IN C. A. C. RING

The best of the local amateur boxers will be seen in action at the Massachusetts boxing championships, at the Commercial A. C., tonight.

It is the first time the Bay State glove-wielders have received an opportunity to decide who's who in their own circle and it looks like a big show.

Bouts will be held at 105, 115, 125, 135, 145 and 158-pounds and at 175-pounds and over. So that all may have an opportunity to take part in the gay festivities, entries will be accepted up until 8 o'clock tonight.

The amateur boxers have a habit of delivering bang-up contests and deserve to draw out the fans. It may be because they do not know how to do anything but fight. Such little pastimes as "fixed" matches, return contests and the like are unknown to these youths.

The show will be the climax to a successful amateur season. The amateurs have received plenty of opportunities to display their skill and boxing ability during the past six months and on every occasion have delivered big.

The St. Joseph's Club has been one of the leaders in offering the amateurs opportunities to perform. It has staged shows at the Commercial Club which have been important factors in developing many new boxers.

DEMPSEY STOPPED NEW RING RIVAL AND RECEIVED $50

(Copyright, 1919, by Damon Runyon.)

Didn't I tell you we might have to ramble a bit as we went along on this winding trail of Jack Dempsey? I believe I did. I believe I told you that Jack's memory is given to sudden bolts off the main track, and to brisk sprints up side paths of recollection, and there's only one thing we can do under the circumstances. That is to follow him.

So then, at this point we must back pedal a bit. We must return to Colorado, and get what would be Jack's fourth fight adjusted in its proper place. Incidentally, I might say in passing, as we are journeying backward that I hear that Jack's first opponent, Freddy Woods, the blacksmith's son, served in the navy during the late unpleasantness.

Furthermore, the dance which Jack put on following one of his fights in Montrose, Col., was after the battle with Woods, and not after the affair with Andy Malloy. This is unimportant, but it keeps the record straight. Heaven only knows what bearing an error might have on history. Outside of these bad breaks, and a few which may follow later on, our narrative is substantially correct to date.

Dempsey's brother, Bernard Dempsey—that same Bernard who himself fought as Jack Dempsey, and abandoned the ring to become a miner—had gone to Cripple Creek, Col., to work in the mines, when he heard that the present Jack had been doing some fighting over on the western slope of the State. This news seems to have been of interest to Bernard, for he sent for Jack to come over into his section of the country.

WINS IN SIXTH ROUND.

There was a fighter named Vic Hansen in those parts at that time, and Bernard thought a match between Hansen and Jack might be a good thing. This laudable thought was shared by Morgan Williams, a former light heavyweight of some little ability who organized in Cripple Creek and fought all over the West in his time.

It was their idea to pitch the battle at the little town of Ramona, hard by Colorado Springs, so Jack Dempsey journeyed via freight, to the Springs and waited there while negotiations were in progress. But the battle with Hansen never came off, so Bernard and Morgan Williams dug up a match for Jack in Cripple Creek.

A fellow named George Copeland was the party of the second part. I never heard of him as a fighter before, or since, I heard Dempsey mention his name, although I thought I knew all the fist swingers of the Rocky Mountains west of that particular era, anyway.

However, he may have been a good fighter, at that. Some people in Cripple Creek must have thought so because Jack says Bernard and Morgan told him they were going to win a lot of money on the fight.

"They said they'd split their bets with me," says Jack, "but they didn't do it. Maybe they didn't win anything. I knocked Copeland out in the sixth round. I got $50 for the fight, which was good money any way you look at it."

He tarried in Cripple Creek and went to work in the mines. He worked there about a year, part of the time with his brother and part of the time in the Golden Cycle, the Portland and other famous mines of the region.

LITTLE ROUGH AND TUMBLE.

Morgan Williams was promoting fights in Cripple Creek then, but Jack Dempsey couldn't get any more engagements in that line. The wonder is Morgan didn't fight him himself. From Cripple Creek Dempsey went down to Pueblo, and in Pueblo he shipped with a gang of men for Upton, Utah, to work on a railroad grade.

It used to be—and maybe it is to this day—quite an idea to ship out in that fashion through the medium of an employment agency, either to really work or just to get farther along in the direction one chanced to be going.

Dempsey shipped on this occasion under the inspiration of a desire to work, but a few days on the grade at Upton [illegible] him. He sat down with a companion one afternoon to think the matter over. Dempsey didn't know it at the moment, but he had turned Bolsheviki.

Along came the boss.

"What's the matter with you guys?" he demanded, heatedly. "Why ain't you working?"

"We've resigned," they announced.

"Yeh?" said the boss a trifle querulously. "Well, no work, no eat."

One word led to additional words. Dempsey and his partner arose, as if to take their departure.

"I'll show you bums something," said the boss.

Bang! Down went Dempsey's pal. The boss could hit.

Bang! Down went the boss. Dempsey also could hit.

Then Dempsey and his partner legged it down the railroad track, and in their ears roared the sound of organized pursuit. The boss had come to in time to start a pick-handle brigade started before Jack and his friend got out of sight.

NABBED BY SHERIFF.

Over and under freight cars and ditches and across the open fields the chase went. Jack was faster than his friend.

"I looked back just [illegible] go down," says Dempsey. "Man, a guy was on top of him—Oh, many a guy. I hid out, and they didn't find me."

That night he drifted into town, seeking a chance to get away from those parts for good and all, and the first man he bumped into was the sheriff.

"Now I've got you," said that official. "You're the guy that almost killed that railroad foreman this afternoon. Maybe he's going to die yet, for all I know."

Jack's protestations that he had acted in self defence, and also to the fact that the railroad boss showed up, highly infuriated and considerably mussed, but nowhere near dead, kept the sheriff from jailing our hero.

"But you be here at 9 o'clock in the morning," he warned.

Long before the fateful hour J. Dempsey was securely ensconced in an empty box car, bound for Colorado.

"I saw my friend just before I left," says Dempsey. "I mean the bird who was with me when the jam with the boss started. I think they had just left him out of the hospital. Say, I never saw a guy so bunged up in my whole life. He was a mess. That's all he was—a mess. There isn't anything they hadn't done to him.

"And say," adds Dempsey, "I don't go anywhere near that Upton, Utah, any more. I wouldn't go there again on a bet. My boss is still hanging around the theatre, and I don't want anything to do with him. No, sir!"

To be continued in Friday's American.

BETTING IS LIVELY ON KILONIS-TURNER BOUT

John Kilonis' admirers declare they will cover anything offered by those who fancy Joe Turner to trim the Greek at the Grand Opera House tomorrow night and this puts it up to Turner's followers. The latter are not so numerous as the Kilonis contingent, but they are quietly backing their opinion and in some cases offering slight odds.

They are to go to a finish, best two out of three falls.

Amherst Plays Aggies

Amherst, May 14.—Zink was Coach Jacklitsch's first selection for slab duty for Amherst in today's game with the Massachusetts Aggies.

POWELL'S MUFFS HAND OPENER TO ST. LOUIS

The unusual activity of Manager Stallings and Business Manager Hap good after yesterday's game, when they dashed madly for a taxi, indicates [illegible] which concerns the strengthening of the Braves.

Where they were headed nobody could ascertain, but it would not be surprising if something is announced today concerning the addition of that much sought for left handed hitting outfielder the team needs so badly.

Unless all signs fail Dick Rudolph will be sent to the mound today to oppose either Oscar Tuero or Lee Meadows. Dick hasn't operated since the flood started a week ago, and with his baffling service the little right-hander ought to put the Braves back in the winning path. The team scored one straight win before it was stopped.

A SAD HOME-COMING.

The Cardinal pitchers can be hit. There's nothing to that. A flivver hit six of them one night a while ago. The ragged ball the Braves played in the opener was a nightmare for those who attended, but certainly the team should not be judged from that exhibition.

It took a man with an iron nerve to play left field. There was the ever present danger of being fatally injured by fly balls out there. Ray Powell was "beaned" when he lost the ball in the sun. His other two muffs [illegible] for three of the Cardinal runs, and the tally was 4—2.

The fact that he has not seen Old Sol in all his shining glory for the past week was mainly responsible for Powell's poor work out there.

NEHF, TOO, DISAPPOINTS.

The team did not look good except [illegible] stand the pace [illegible] are wrong. The Cardinals made more hits off the star southpaw than [illegible] all spring.

Buck Herzog continues to show the world that he is worth that $10,000 his contract calls for. He slashed barg-up ball and hit the [illegible] quite viciously. His triple accounted for both Braves runs.

The decision of the baseball [illegible] to raise the playing limit to twenty-five from twenty one raises the well known havoc with the Braves' plans. Stallings had hoped to get [illegible] extra talent other teams were carrying, but this extension allows all teams considerable leeway in reducing their ranks.

BIG LEAGUES GO BACK TO 25-PLAYER LIMIT

New York, May 14. — The major baseball leagues have taken off the restriction on the player limit and gone back to the old twenty-five player limit. The change goes into effect tomorrow.

The schedule of Sunday National League games at the Polo Grounds and Brooklyn follows:

Polo Grounds—May 18, Cincinnati; May 25, St. Louis; June 1, Boston; June 15, Pittsburgh; July 20, Chicago; July 27, Boston; August 17, Chicago; August 24, Pittsburgh; September [illegible] Philadelphia.

HOLY CROSS 1922 NINE CALLING ON ANDOVER

Andover, May 14.—The Holy Cross freshman baseball team was to play Andover here this afternoon. Dugan, a brother of Joe Dugan of the Athletics, and Gilden, formerly of Boston College High, are the stars of the visiting nine.

EDDIE CICOTTE DOWN TO FACE CARL MAYS

Chicago, May 14.—The Red Sox and White Sox were to go to the mat at Comiskey Park this afternoon. It starts what can be fairly termed [illegible].

It was the first meeting of the season between these ancient rivals and both managers, Ed Barrow and Kid Gleason, were primed for a battle royal.

Early advices from the hostile camps indicated that Eddie Cicotte, dean of knuckle-ball flingers and "Ace" of the White Sox's curving contingent, would be on the firing line against Carl Mays.

RED SOX AT BEST.

The Back Bay [illegible] arrived here from the congealed East, and every gent taking orders from Barrow was determined to do his bit toward [illegible] over the cheaty Chicagoans.

Gleason's men have participated in sixteen games since the curtain was raised on the present flag campaign. They have taken five out of eight from St. Louis, five straight from the Detroit Tigers and two out of three from the Cleveland Indians.

In directing his troops against the other Western clubs Gleason always bore in mind the fact that he was going to experience a world of trouble from the Bostonians. Hence he played his cards in such a way as to keep Cicotte, Williams and Faber, his [illegible] series with the world's champions.

HOT SERIES IN OFFING.

This trio will surely work in order against Boston and one of the most sensational series in the history of baseball should ensue.

The Chicagoans, proud of their [illegible] spite the fact they are almost sure to draw such [illegible] as Ruth, Mays [illegible].

The Red Sox ran into milder weather here and the gent at the government building predicts warm breezes during their sojourn.

B. C. CUBS WIN EVEN WITH DRISCOLL ABSENT

The Boston College Freshman track [illegible] of Jake Driscoll, conquered the Commerce fliers in their dual meet at University Heights, 55-21. Dugan, with twelve points, was the individual star, followed by Lundell of Commerce, who took first place in the [illegible] and [illegible] jump, rolling [illegible].

The feature was a dead [illegible] between [illegible] and George (Tex) [illegible]. Bill Corrigan and Sig [illegible] showed up in fine style for the [illegible] men as did Leiberfar for Commerce.

THE DARK STAR

By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

THRILLING ROMANCE OF AN AMERICAN GIRL

One of the Newest and Best Novels of Intrigue, Love and War From This Famous Author's Pen, Full of Vivid Human Interest

Copyright, 1917, by Robert W. Chambers.

THE instant his head was turned the girl snatched a pistol from the brace of weapons on the washstand and thrust it under her cloak. Neither Golden Beard nor Ali Baba noticed the incident; the latter was busy connecting the three cylinders with coils of wire, the former, deeply interested, followed the operation for a moment or two, then walking over to the trunk, he lifted from it a curious little clock with two dials and set it on the raised shelf of glass above the washstand.

Compared Time

"Karl, haf you ship's time?"

Ali Baba paused to fish out his watch and the two compared timepieces. Then Golden Beard wound the clock, set the hands of one dial at the time indicated by their watches, set the hands of the other dial at 2:13; and Ali Baba, carrying a reel of copper wire from the bed to the washstand, fastened one end of it to the mechanism of the clock.

Golden Beard turned sharply on Ilse Dumont.

"I said go [illegible] understand."

The girl re[illegible] steadily.

"I understood that we had abandoned this idea for a better one."

"There iss no better one."

"There is! Of what advantage would it be to blow up the captain's cabin and the bridge when it is not certain that the papers will be destroyed?"

"Listen once," retorted Golden Beard, wagging his finger [illegible].

"Cabin and bridge are directly above us and there remains not a splinter large like a pin. I know. I know my bombs. I know."

In Soft Voice

The soft voice of Ali Baba interrupted and [illegible] eyes peered at [illegible].

"Het wes verie excellent plan, Johann. We do not require these papers except to destroy them, we are much anxious," he bent a deathly stare on Neeland, "and this young gentleman who may again annoy us." He nodded confidently to himself and continued to connect the wires. "Yes, yes," he murmured absently, "het ees veree good plan—veree good plan to blow him into leetle pieces so big as a pin."

"It is a [illegible] the girl desperately. "There is no need for wanton killing [illegible], when we can——"

"Killing," repeated Golden Beard. "That makes [illegible] captain [illegible] serve [illegible] nodding coolly toward [illegible] and—"Knows [illegible] want [illegible] talk [illegible] are due [illegible] God knows there will be [illegible] rushing to and fro at [illegible]."

"Go on deck, I say [illegible] that rope ladder. Weishelm's fishing smack will be waiting und if we do not swim for it we are caught on board! Und that iss the end of it all for us!"

"Johann," she began tremulously, "listen to me——"

"Nein! Nein! What for a Frauenzimmer haff we here!" retorted Golden Beard, losing his patience and catching her [illegible] cut und fly for [illegible] keep it [illegible] ofer it [illegible] at those stars once."

He forced her toward the door, she turned, struggling [illegible] him.

"Then for [illegible] give this man a chance! Don't leave him [illegible] atoms! [illegible] ex- [illegible] of the [illegible] at the closed port, evaded Golden Beard, sprang upon the sofa, unscrewed the glass [illegible].

The [illegible] was too small even to admit the passage of [illegible] she realized it; Golden Beard laughed and turned to examine the result of Ali Baba's wiring.

For a second the girl gazed wildly around her as though seeking some help [illegible] then [illegible] stealing [illegible] portie[illegible].

In Renewed Anger

As she sprang to the floor Golden Beard swung around in renewed anger at her for still loitering.

"Sacremiston!" he exclaimed. "It is time you do your part! Go to your post then! We remain here until five minutes is left us. Then we join you."

[illegible]

"Yes."

"You understand [illegible] matter what happens?"

"Yes."

He stood looking at her for a moment [illegible]

[illegible] own. He laughed [illegible] a [illegible] her [illegible] ker.

[illegible] Ali Baba, who was still [illegible] the wires [illegible] were Neeland sat [illegible] and gagged, pulled from his pockets an auger with its bit, a screw-eye, and block and tackle, and, standing on the bed, began to bore a hole in the ceiling.

Hoisted Cylinders

In a few moments he had fastened the screw-eye, rigged his block [illegible] wires [illegible] of the bed [illegible] the [illegible].

To [illegible] room on the [illegible] Ali Baba removed [illegible] and [illegible] there.

Then apparently satisfied with [illegible] he sat down [illegible] fashion on the sofa, lighted a cigarette, selected a bonbon from the box beside him, and calmly regaled himself.

Presently Golden Beard tied the cord which held up the sling in which the bombs were slung against the ceiling. He fastened [illegible] feet, then leisurely pulled out and filled his porcelain pipe, and seated himself on the sofa beside Ali Baba.

[illegible] spoke [illegible] Golden Beard drew his watch from his waistcoat pocket and compared it carefully with the dial of the alarm clock on the washstand shelf. The third time he did this he tapped Ali Baba on the shoulder, rose [illegible] out his pipe and flung it out of the open port.

Together they walked over to Neeland, examined the gag and ligatures [illegible] the prisoner [illegible] nodded [illegible] the electric light, and [illegible] out, locked the door on the outside.

It lacked five minutes of the time indicated on the alarm dial.

THE [illegible] at which he was looking—some photo-play too crudely staged, and in which he himself was no more [illegible] tator.

Until now Neeland had not been scared; Ali Baba and his automatic pistol were only part of this unreality; his appearance on the scene had been fantastically classical; he entered when his cue was given by [illegible] faultless make up [illegible] always [illegible] dramatic effect, Golden Beard had appeared. Everything was en regele, every unity nicely preserved. Scheherazade [illegible] was the [illegible] the [illegible] ever [illegible].

The Colored Camisole

By Rita Stuyvesant

THE vogue for the bright tinted georgette blouses has created need for colored camisoles. A lovely blouse, perhaps of the new victory red has a way of losing its [illegible] over a [illegible] white [illegible] designers are offering [illegible] colored camisoles [illegible] match each transparent blouse [illegible] the [illegible] a contrast [illegible] of colors is most effective and if one can choose the proper color for the camisole very often it will enhance the beauty of the blouse.

[illegible] tailored model. Red satin is the material with hemstitched trimming, for there is something repellent about the colored laces that women of the better class do not favor.

A narrow fold at the top of the camisole is hemstitched and finished with a red ribbon draw string. Shoulder straps about an inch wide [illegible] brings out all the charm of the shade.

Another blouse of pumpkin colored chiffon had an under bodice of the same shade. There is many a slip in the fashions this Spring, and even an unpretentious camisole is a slip on model. Made of pumpkin satin, it has an elastic both top and bottom and no opening either front or back. Ribbon straps are used over the shoulders and a tiny circle of silk flowers in pastel shades decorates the front.

The stout woman who does not feel comfortable in a camisole will like an underbodice with tiny sleeves set in. These are made on the style of the old time "corset cover" and are cut high over the shoulders and back. The straight sleeves are set in and reach half way to the elbow. Sometimes they are finished with a ribbon draw string run through a casing, while others have a picot edge. Small buttons and button holes in the front are concealed under a fold.

Very little trimming is used on these colored camisoles, but occasionally there is a touch of hand embroidery, for what garment this season is without its bit of hand work. Whether it is a circle of tiny buds or a lover's bow of French knots, or perhaps a single spray of flowers, embroidery is found where simple decoration is desired. Odd miniature silk flowers can often be purchased at quite a reduction and make an exquisitely dainty decoration.

Blouses of bisque, tan, ecru, coffee or chocolate emphasize their daintiness when worn over a flesh or pink satin camisole. Navy blue georgette blouses can have their appearance completely changed by a flame red camisole, and a lemon shade is exquisite under a French blue blouse.

A New Romance by Mrs. Van de Water

SERIAL REPLETE WITH A[illegible] INTEREST

David DeLaine, War Hero, Is Left a Fortune by His Aunt's Will Provided He Marries the Girl of Her Choice

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

CHAPTER I.

Copyright, 1919, Star Co.

DAVID DELAINE, erstwhile ambulance driver in France, now invalided out of the service, was thinking very hard.

He was back in [illegible] old U. S. A. Yet, just now [illegible] did not seem very "good" to him.

For he was depressed. He had longed to return to his own country—longed for it unspeakably ever since he had learned that he was no more fit for work "Over There." The bullet that had penetrated his lung had left [illegible] weak for active service. He had been told to go home and get some outdoor job that would not be too strenuous.

The advice had sounded simple. To follow it was quite another matter.

When he enlisted he had given up a job in Baltimore. It had been desk work, the kind of thing he must avoid until he was strong again.

In the bottom of his heart he had counted on some financial help from his nearest relative—an eccentric aunt—his dead father's sister. She was proud of the DeLaine name, and David was the only one to perpetuate that name.

Aunt Jeanne was queer and very exacting. Her nephew paid a duty call to her only as often as he felt was necessary. At such times she would urge him to l[illegible] for a wife.

"If you marry the [illegible] of a girl I wish you to, I w[illegible] promise you that you shall be w[illegible] provided for," was her frequent [illegible].

These words irrit[illegible] her nephew. Not only did he obj[illegible] to having his future planned for [illegible], but he resented the sugges[illegible] that he was the kind of a man [illegible] would make a marriage of conv[illegible].

"I do not intend to marry at all," he would say [illegible] to hide his annoyance.

Miss DeLaine [illegible] shake her head reprovingly. "You will be sorry if you do n[illegible]," she warned.

The Right Kind of a Girl

So annoyed [illegible] David been by these speeches t[illegible] he had refused to call upon the [illegible] daughter of an old friend of his au[illegible] when the girl had come to Ba[illegible] in response to an invitation [illegible] Miss DeLaine.

"Desiree Leigh[illegible] is going to spend a few da[illegible] with me," Aunt Jeanne had told [illegible] vid. "I am very anxious to ha[illegible] you know her. She is pretty—[illegible] only child of a wealthy New Y[illegible] man—and he is a widower. H[illegible] mother was a friend of mine. [illegible] is the kind of a girl I hope [illegible] will marry."

But the young [illegible] was obdurate. While Desiree [illegible] in Baltimore he never went nea[illegible] aunt's house—a fact that the [illegible] woman noted with dignified [illegible] favor.

Yet at Chri[illegible] and on birthdays she alwa[illegible] sent her nephew a moderate chec[illegible] with which to buy for himself a [illegible] from her. It was this custom that had given him ground for the hope that when he returned home, invalided, she would let him have a little money until he had secured a position—after which he would refund the amount lent him plus the interest [illegible].

The plan had seemed easy as David DeLaine thought it out while recuperating in France after his discharge from the hospital. He had enough money to pay for his board and lodgings for a few weeks in a tiny French village. He wanted to be quite well and ready for work before starting for his native land.

He had written to his aunt as soon as he was able to hold a pen. He had told her of his wound and of his wishes. He was glad that he had done this when he reflected that as soon as he got back home he must ask her to lend him money.

He hoped to get a job in New York. Surely the prospects of advancement there would be better than in Baltimore.

The Terms of the Will

And then, just before leaving France, he had received a letter from his aunt's lawyer telling him that Miss Jeanne DeLaine had died suddenly of heart disease.

"She left full directions regarding her funeral and the disposition of her personal and household effects," the lawyer wrote. "All has been done as she would wish. Her many friends were generally remembered. She arranged with meticulous care that everyone should have some souvenir.

"As to the other terms of her will, I will tell you of them when you return, which, I understand, will be very soon. It is easier to explain a matter face to face than to write about it."

As soon as DeLaine landed in the United States he went to Baltimore. He had a brief but honest talk with his aunt's lawyer, who explained the situation as tactfully as possible.

The bulk of Miss DeLaine's fortune was to go to her nephew if he married the girl of her choice.

"And that young lady is Miss Desiree Leighton of New York," the lawyer informed David.

He made no comments on his late client's eccentricities, although he probably had decided views with regard to them.

"And if they marry?" The question was so blunt as to be almost rude.

"Everything will go to certain charities designated by Miss DeLaine."

David rose to his feet. "It is a foregone conclusion that the money will go to those charities," he said. "I have no intention of marrying—even if any woman would have me—which is most unlikely."

"But," the lawyer reminded him, "the testator named two years after your return to this country as the time allowed you in which to carry out her wishes with regard to Miss Leighton."

"Thanks!" was the dry rejoinder. "Twenty-two years would find my decision unchanged."

That night David DeLaine went to New York to look for "a job."

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

He Does Not Call

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am twenty-two, rather good-looking, always jolly and happy. I am very fond of a young man of the same age, and he seems to care for me.

Some months ago my mother died, and two months ago my father. I am keeping house for two brothers and two sisters, all younger than myself—we were left very comfortable.

Both the young man and his mother were very good to me at the time of my father's death. He said he would call again, but he never did.

Do you think it is on account of my being lame that he does not call? It was caused by an accident when I was a child. I am able to dance very well. I would appreciate your advice on the subject very much as I am fond of this young man. M. C.

AS the young man and his mother were both kind to you in your recent bereavement, it would be quite proper for you to invite them to your home sometime.

Badly Treated at Home

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

What shall I do to get away from my home? I am eighteen and of Italian parentage, and I am afraid you will not quite believe me w[illegible] I tell you I am abused. I a[illegible] not allowed out or to have go[illegible] times, like other girls, and [illegible] girl friend will call to see me, [illegible] knowing the conditions at ho[illegible]. Please, Miss Fairfax, tell [illegible] where I can go to find a litt[illegible] peace?

[illegible]ROKENHEARTED.

WHY not [illegible] to your parish priest and p[illegible] the matter of your cruel treat[illegible] before him? I believe you a[illegible] a little old to obtain protection [illegible] om the Society for the Prevention [illegible] Cruelty to Children, but I am s[illegible] you will find some one there who [illegible] will give you good advice. The[illegible] is also the Legal Aid Society, w[illegible] has several branches in differen[illegible] parts of the city, and where the [illegible] est of legal advice may be had wit[illegible] charge.

Self-Conscious Youth

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

We [illegible] young girls of sixteen and [illegible] a great deal of attention [illegible] walking. We would apprec[illegible] very much if you would solve th[illegible] mysterious question.

H. P. AND R. N.

I AM afraid you are much too self-conscious. You are still children in years, an[illegible] if you really wish to avoid notice I see no reason why you should [illegible] not succeed. Try hard not [illegible] think about your appearance or whether people are looking at you.

SUPERSTITION

DO you view with air judicious all these follies superstitious some folks feel? Would you tell each man and woman there is naught that sign or omen can reveal? [illegible] a [illegible] of black cats, and I would not dare dispute you, you may settle it to suit you, without spats. Superstition is not clever, and I'm sure that I would never entertain views so wholly antiquated, owned by people addlepated, without brain. But, as it is gratifying and a soul [illegible] satisfying, I don't pass under a painter's ladder, but avoid it like an adder in the grass. And on Friday I'll not journey to a picnic or a tourney or a ball—it is not that I'm believing foolish tales of old wives' weaving, not at all! And I'll add to this confession that I have a strange obsession; if I break a looking-glass it frets me, sadly worries and upsets me 'til I take [illegible] my hand [illegible] other mirrors [illegible] crack, then I have no fear of bearing seven years [illegible] ing on my back. Neither do I like to hear a screech owl make remarks so dreary in the night, and I have not yet been able to think thirteen at the table is just right. But I know my [illegible] is quite free from superstition and such junk; though to meet a five leafed clover gives me creepy chills all over, it's just bunk!

DO YOU KNOW THAT—

English-speaking peoples use a thermometer invented by Fahrenheit, a German; many of the Germans and Scandinavians use one invented by Reaumur, a Frenchman, wh[illegible] the [illegible] and most of the other [illegible] nations use the centigrade thermometer invented by a Swede.

ANECDOTES OF THE FAMOUS

Canada's Premier, Sir Robert Borden, is a man who believes in getting things done.

His favorite type is an old bridge builder he happens to know, concerning whom he tells the following story:

Some hundreds of miles from anywhere (says Sir Robert), on the new Hudson Bay Railway, a wooden trestle bridge had been destroyed by fire, and it was necessary to replace it.

The bridge engineer and his staff were ordered in haste to the place. Two days later came the superintendent of the division. Alighting from his private car, he encountered the old master bridge builder.

"Bill," said the superintendent—and the words quivered with energy, "I want this job rushed. Every hour's delay costs the company money. Have you got the architect's plans for the new bridge?"

"I don't know," said the bridge builder, "whether the architect has the picture drawed yet or not, but the bridge is up and the trains passin' over it."

I was there to make a sketch of her. Luncheon was just over, and she was talking to a little knot of women. The first words I heard, as I slid quietly into a nearby seat, were "National Biscuit," recalling pleasantly my own tasty Uneeda Lunch[illegible] I liked her, and [illegible] fortably as she spoke again, my pe[illegible] and [illegible] daylight, [illegible]

How Much is 1¢

Suppose that for one cent you could insure the quality of your cake, biscuits, etc., wouldn't that be real economy?

Well, one cent is about the difference in the cost of a whole cake or a pan of biscuits made with Royal Baking Powder as compared with cheaper baking powders made from alum or phosphate—a trifle, indeed, to insure the quality and wholesomeness of your baking.

Stock Market Strong and Active in New York

U. S. STEEL LED IN UPWARD MOVEMENT

Leather and Shipping Issues Prominent for Gains, While Oils Lag

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor.

Stocks were strong in New York at noon, as they had been all the morning. The activity of the market can be judged from the fact that transactions in the first hour totalled around 470,000 shares. Profittaking was general at times, but selling pressure from this source failed to cause a reaction. There was as much vigor to buying as has been observed at any time for a week or more. Large interests were evidently operating on the bull side.

The market had a strong start, with all groups showing an upward tendency except oils. U. S. Steel led the advance and other steels were strong. Reports of an increased demand for locomotives both in this country and abroad was reflected by Baldwin and American Locomotive. They were among the strongest and most active issues. Baldwin selling above 100. Shipping and leather issues participated in the rise.

Issues to sell at record highest prices included Hide and Leather common and preferred, American Bosch Magneto, Railway Steel Spring, Car and Foundry and Marine common. Among those to sell at their 1919 highest were Crucible, Republic Steel, Utah Copper, General Cigar Stores, American Locomotive, Baldwin, Central Leather, New York Central, Union Pacific and Rock Island.

IMPORTANT NOON GAINS.

Gains at noon included American International 2¼, at 89½; Atlantic Gulf 2⅝, at 165; Marine preferred 2¾, at 120½; Baldwin 2⅛, at 101⅜; American Locomotive 1⅜, at 79¾; Hide and Leather common 2, at 33¾; preferred 1¾, at 127¾; Central Leather 1¾, at 91¾; General Cigar Stores 2, at 77; American Bosch Magneto 2, at 102; U. S. Steel 1, at 102⅜, after selling at 102¾; Bethlehem B 2, at 77½, and Crucible 3¼, at 76.

Railroads were strong, their gains ranging from fractions to 1¾ at 29¼ for Rock Island.

BANKERS READY FOR EXPANSION

Market strength at the opening and better support for stocks than usual during the first hour, verified reports that in banking circles there is stronger belief than ever that the trade is quickening its strides, and that the country is moving onward into a remarkable period of prosperity. After returning from New York, a leading Chicago banker said bankers in the former city are expecting a decline in money rates and years of active business. "I was impressed," he said, "with the preparedness and keyed up condition of banking sentiment with reference to new business. Eastern bankers are in readiness for anything that comes along—international or domestic."

VENTURA OIL IS A LEADER IN BOSTON

Gains in Boston at noon included American Bosch Magneto, 2 at 102; Ventura, ½ at 15¼, its record highest; Swift & Co., 3 at 148¾; U. S. Smelting, ½ at 69, and Helvetia, ¼ at 3½.

At the opening the local market was strong, and gains were held well during the morning. Among the most active issues were Ventura, Helvetia, Gorton-Pew and U. S. Smelting. Coppers showed more strength as a class, responding to the price advance and increased demand reported in the local market. Osceola, Quincy and American Zinc were among the strongest mines, each advancing a point, but trading in this group was comparatively small. U. S. Smelting advanced more than a point.

Packing issues were higher, Swift & Co. being up three points at its highest. American Bosch Magneto sold at its record highest, advancing two points. Ventura also attained a high record price. U. S. Smelting, Seneca, American Woolen preferred and Arizona Commercial sold at their year's highest.

United Fruit advanced a point, but was not dealt in to any great extent.

Trading had breadth, and was on a large scale throughout the forenoon.

PHONE GIRLS TO AID DRIVE FOR FUNDS

Will Give Up One Day to Collect Money for Salvation Army

Sacrificing their day's pay, 1,000 telephone operators are to devote a working day during the Salvation Army drive in order to collect funds for the Army.

They will go out on the street, Thursday, May 22, and collect money toward the $3,000,000 fund sought during the week's campaign.

"Our union," Miss June said, speaking for the members, "believes in the Salvation Army; knows of its glorious achievements over here and over there. So 1,000 of our girls are going to do their 'bit' for the army. With the loss of a day's pay to themselves they are going to serve the army Thursday, May 22, by going out through the city getting what they can to help what they look upon as one of the most humanitarian causes in the world."

Miss June explained that there would be no impairment of telephone service in consequence, the operators themselves making certain of that.

Word was received by the army from James A. Flaherty, supreme knight of the Knights of Columbus, assuring the backing of the K. C.

Josephus Daniels.

Why Europe Likes Josephus Daniels

JOSEPHUS DANIELS has won the affection of everyone he has met abroad simply because he is a good, plain, wholesome, unaffected American. He has not tried, and could not try, to behave in Europe as do the Europeans. He has listened to their views, and quietly and clearly expressed his own.

He believes that America is the greatest country in the world, and is not afraid to say so. He believes that we should have the greatest navy, and is not afraid to say that—even in England, where it is far from a popular view.

Mr. Daniels doesn't go about with a chip on his shoulder. He is not a patrioteer; he never "flies the eagle."

But people who talk with him find out very shortly what he thinks about things, and they respect him because he is not ashamed to be an American, or to believe in America.

His tour of Europe was a success, just as his management of the Navy in wartime was a success, because he went about it quietly and honestly, without caring much whether what he thought offended people, so long as his actions and beliefs were sincere.

Mr. Daniels has made an excellent Cabinet member, and his administration of the Navy, long derided by those who underrated the man, has won the admiration of Europe, and what is still more difficult to win—that of every man who served under him.

Probe of Lawrence Situation by Essex Grand Jury

It is reported that the Grand Jury of Essex County will investigate conditions at Lawrence, caused by the great strike in that city.

Very well. There is no good reason why such an investigation should not be held. The Grand Jury has certain powers for compelling the attending of witnesses which are very convenient for the purposes of such an investigation.

But in its practice it has one vital weakness as an investigating body of conditions created by a big strike, which involve class feeling and fundamental social, political and economic prejudices. The issues at stake in Lawrence concern not the strikers and the mill owners and the citizens of Lawrence alone, but the whole people of Massachusetts, the whole people of the United States and, in the present fluid conditions of the world, the whole people of the world.

The Lawrence situation is not a question of the existence or non-existence of ordinary criminality. It does not involve the question whether or not there is a segregated criminal condition in Lawrence.

No intelligent man can gain a knowledge of conditions in Lawrence without finding himself more or less affected by his prejudices, social, political, or economic. If his prejudices are with the under dog he will discount stories of disorderly conduct by the strikers. If his disposition "is to be strong on the stronger side," he will discount stories of violence and disorderly conduct by the Lawrence police.

Without the salutary restraint of the public giving of testimony it is all too easy for a jury to give free play, even unconsciously, to its prejudices.

So the weakness of an investigation by a Grand Jury into conditions such as exist in Lawrence lies in the secret character of its investigation.

The American is bound to assume in advance that the Grand Jury would not deliberately and consciously prostitute its great and necessary powers to the mean and dangerous purposes of political propaganda against the strikers.

These are not times when the processes of the law can safely be used as an instrument of injustice and oppression. This, above all other times, would be most unfortunate for a public exhibition of the perversion of a great American institution to the low purposes of political, or social, or economic partisanship, in a situation towards which the eyes of the whole nation are turning.

District Attorney Wells, we believe, is too sound from instinct, and certainly from political experience, to participate in any such tragical farce. The issues at Lawrence are national issues. They are present everywhere in America. They will not be settled in the courts, or by any other of the instruments set up by the American people for the purpose of registering their will. They are the kind of issues which are reserved by the American people for their own direct judgment.

If the effort of the Supreme Court of the United States to effect the great political issue of slavery was a tragic failure, what would be said of an effort of our Essex County Grand Jury to effect the great issue involved in Lawrence, as fundamental as the slavery question and only less portentous if not more wisely treated.

Ye TOWNE GOSSIP

By K. C. B.

Registered U. S. Patent Office.

HE WAS a little fellow
ABOUT EIGHT years old.
WITH A little beagle cap.
AND A round red face.
AND HE was all alone.
BY THE side of the road.
AND STEPPED into the ditch.
AS WE came along.
AND HE looked to me.
AS THOUGH he wanted a ride.
TO WHEREVER he was going.
AND WE stopped.
AND WANTED to know.
OF HIS destination.
AND HE pointed his finger.
TO AS far away.
AS THE road went straight.
AND WE asked him in.
AND HE climbed to the seat.
AND SAT on its edge.
AND WE went on our way.
TO A country store.
AT A cross roads place.

WHERE WE had to turn.
TO GO down to the place.
WHERE WE'VE moved ourselves.
FOR THE Summer months.
AND WE stopped the car.
AND I said to him.
"IT'S AS far as we go."
AND I asked him then.
JUST WHERE he lived.
AND HE pointed again.
IN A general way.
TO A group of homes.
JUST A little beyond.
AND I wanted to know.
IF HE thought he could make it.
THE REST of the way.
AND HE said he could.
AND CLIMBED from the seat.
AND OUT of the car.
AND STOOD by the road.
AS WE turned the bend.
AND THE last I saw.
WAS HIS little red face.

AS HE turned it north.
AND HIS two short legs.
THAT CARRIED him on.
AND LATE in the day.
WE RETRACED our steps.
PAST THE village store.
AND HE was there.
ON THE old store steps.
AND WE waved at him.
BUT HE didn't wave back.
AND WE went on our way.
AND DOWN the road.
JUST A mile beyond.
WHERE WE'D met the boy.
WE MET a woman.
WHO MOTIONED to us.
AND WE came to a stop.
AND IN tearful voice.
SHE WANTED to know.
IF WE had seen.
A LITTLE short boy.
WHO HAD run away.
AND WE said we had.

AND WE took her back.
TO THE village store.
AND SHE grabbed the boy.
IN HER two strong arms.
AND HUGGED him tight.
WHILE WE took them back.
AND WE'D carried the kid.
A FULL five miles.
FROM WHERE he lived.
AND HE had stories to us.
BECAUSE HE was running away.

I THANK you.

The Okwawa Skull Also "Skull and Bones" Destroying Religion

By Arthur Brisbane

(Copyright, 1919.)

Future ages will be interested in the paragraph about this Okwawa skull, actually included in the awe-inspiring peace treaty.

"Germany is to restore within six months * * * the skull of the sultan of Okwawa, formerly in German East Africa, to his Britannic majesty's government."

Okwawa was sultan of an African tribe whose land the Germans took.

When African gentlemen looked upon a sultan as a first-class magician, influential with the gods or especially gifted in murdering neighbors, they preserved his skull to bring them luck.

Of all skulls of different sultans, the skull of Okwawa was most highly valued.

The German duke of Machlenberg, sent to the land of Okwawa, took away more than a thousand skulls, including the sacred skull of the sultan. He wanted to study bumps, the protuberance at the base, the low angle in front.

Okwawa rests in peace, let us hope. The fact that his misshapen skull finds a place in the peace treaty alongside the restoration of Alsace Lorraine, proves how wise the English are.

They will soon take over the German colonies. Important natives will gather, an important British official will appear with a silver casket. He will open it reverently, saying: "Behold the noble skull of the glorious Okwawa, sent back to you by his Britannic majesty, George Fifth, who from now on will be your boss."

The gentlemen in that part of Africa will bang their heads on the ground reverently, overjoyed to get back the lucky skull. They will say: "King George forever! He knows a noble skull when he sees it; knows enough to send it back that it may continue to bring good luck, rain when we need it, plenty of calves, good crops and other blessings."

The English have the intelligence of Alexander. When he conquered Egypt he bowed before the sacred ox and worshipped. The Egyptians liked him.

The Persians who conquered Egypt earlier acted on the Prussian plan. They butchered the sacred ox and ate it, which didn't do them any good with the Egyptians.

After many things supposed to be done by this peace treaty are forgotten, little boys reading history will be told about the Okwawa skull as interesting evidence of the state of development reached by humanity in the year 1919.

One trouble with Germany was too much Kaiser, too little diplomacy.

Yale, and other great colleges, presumably celebrate the end of the war by reviving the "slap on the back."

The intellectual giant of Yale is walking along, shivering with happy anticipation. An older "man" slaps him on the back and says, "Go to your room." Off he goes, happy, he has been elected to something. This slap, at Yale, means that he has been chosen a member of "Skull and Bones," "Scroll and Key" or "Wolf's Head." Young gentlemen might have invented a more serious way of celebrating an event that should make even children in colleges think earnestly.

However, secret societies represent an ancient passion in the human breast, dating back to the tortures of Neophytes in early religions and primitive tribes. The young Indian was hung in the air by ropes fastened to thorns planted in the muscles under his shoulder blades. Thus suspended, he was swung round and round, enduring pain without a cry.

The Harvard boy, honored with the dignity of the "D K E," stood smiling while holes were burned into his arm with a lighted cigar. They abolished the actual flesh-burning recently. But it will take long to abolish the desire to belong to something that others cannot join. Exclusiveness is a passion with all childish minds.

The Bolsheviki tried to make money undesirably by flooding the country with worthless billions of Russian rubles. That will not work; real money, representing past effort and future safety, will retain its popularity.

Now the Bolshevik gentlemen seek to bring religion into contempt by holding mock religious ceremonies in churches, sticking bayonets into sacred images, even putting cigarettes in the mouths of those images. The Bolsheviki gentlemen might well go to Niagara Falls, put their hands in the current and expect to keep it from flowing.

Religion was born in man when the first of his ancestors a half million years ago began to wonder about the wind that roared through the cave, the lightning that killed his friend and spared him, the shadow that followed and looked like him.

Religion will continue. It represents man's effort to understand that which can never be understood this side of the grave and will always keep him busy.

The Tardy Tides

A shrewd explanation of the phenomenon of the tides was once given by an old fisherman, "Uncle Joe," some one asked him, "Do you know what caused the tides?" The old man looked profound, and admitted, "Well, I have some idea." "Can you explain it to us?" Uncle Joe would not be hurried, but, after some urging, he answered, "You've turned over in bed, I think likely?" "Certainly!" And when you went over the bedclothes kind o' slipped round, and didn't get there at the same time as you did?" "Yes." "Well, that's the way of the tides. The old world slips round inside of the sea like a man under the bedclothes, and that's what makes the tides!"

LIVING WITH YOUR CHILDREN

Like thousands of other parents, you think it unnecessary for you to accumulate for your old age because you expect to spend your declining years in the homes of your children.

You have a right to expect this, but it does not always work out this way.

When your children marry they do not always have full control of their homes—sometimes they have really little to say as to the conduct of them.

Your children-in-law may be very fond of you, but you cannot expect them to have quite the same sympathy and understanding that an own child would or should have.

They do not know the privations you underwent to put your family in the best possible position you could, nor do they feel the love-controlled interest which prompted you in everything you did for your offspring.

This fact does not relieve the own child from doing his or her utmost to make life comfortable for father and mother as they get older, but you are not fair to that son or that daughter if you do not work as much as possible to keep from having to accept help from them, while they are rearing their families and adjusting their own affairs and conditions.
